Thousands Watch as Firemen Dig Into Debris Seeking Victims of Hotel Fire

Death toll in the Terminal hotel fire reached 26 last night as two more bodies were recovered by searchers, firemen and others engaged in the grim task of digging into tons of fallen debris. This is where the desk of the hotel stood. Thousands of persons watched as searchlights played on ruins of the burned hotel and men worked all night in the quest for bodies believed buried there. Mingled emotions were caught by the camera, faces expressing anxiety, fear, mirth, unconcern. Many parents brought children to watch the salvage work.

RIVERS CONFERS WITH ROOSEVELT, SEEKS U. S. FUNDS

Governor Promised Fullest Co-operation in Obtaining for State Money in Spending Program.

GEORGIA EXECUTIVE AT TWO SESSIONS

Government Aid for Improving Eleemosynary Institutions Is Sought.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16.—Governor Rivers discussed Georgia finances with President Roosevelt at the Georgia congressional delegation here today, receiving assurances of fullest co-operation in obtaining for the state every available dollar allotted under the new federal spending program. Governor Rivers attended two sessions with capitol leaders, a White House luncheon at noon and a conference tonight with members of the Georgia congressional delegation.

Liberal Treatment.

Following the Governor's discussion of RFC loan negotiations with the President, Mr. Roosevelt directed his son and secretary, Charles Roosevelt, to communicate with Chairman Jesse Jones, of the Federal lending agency, and expressed a wish that the Georgia application be given liberal treatment.

Governor Rivers had announced Atlanta, before leaving for the White House, that the purpose of his trip was to pursue negotiations for an advance from the Federal Government of some $3,200,000 through the granting of rental warrants of state-owned W. & A. railroad, proceeds of which are to be used in obtaining a WPA grant of approximately $5,000,000 for improvement of state eleemosynary institutions.

Seeks Lower Rate.

Earlier conferences between Governor Rivers and Senators C. W. Coker and Russell had resulted in a decision to approve the advance on a basis of 3 1/4 per cent interest annually. However, Governor Rivers is looking out for a maximum of 3 per cent, insisting that this is amply fair. He will confer with Chairman Jones tomorrow, and then confer with WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins in an effort to complete financing arrangements for several projects, primarily a new $5,000,000 state hospital at Milledgeville.

The Governor is also asking that the RFC make the loan available immediately without awaiting outcome of a test case to determine validity of the act by the state legislature authorizing the program. Question of validity was raised in a case in which the state had no specific reference to the program was made in the call for the special session.

The conference tonight was attended by the full delegation, with exception of Congressman B. B. Whelchel, of Gainesville, who is recovering from injuries suffered in a recent automobile accident.

The night meeting was under the leadership of L. W. Robert Jr., member of the board of regents.

EIGHT ARE INDICTED BY GRAFT JURORS

Five City Policemen and Three Former Deputies Are Named in Probe.

Five city policemen and three former deputy sheriffs were indicted yesterday on bribery charges by the Fulton county grand jury in its first action against law enforcement officials since taking up the graft inquiry two weeks ago.

The jury added four additional counts, charging bribery, to indictments returned by the past grand jury against two former deputy sheriffs and one city policeman.

Those named in the new true bills yesterday were City Policemen J. A. Bailey, J. B. King, G. B. Scoggins and F. J. Aycock, and former Deputy Sheriff George L. Hulsey, who served under the late Sheriff J. I. Lowry.

Four additional bribery charges were added on true bills against former Deputies Gus H. Howard Jr. and J. F. Schilling Sr. One additional bribery count was placed on a bill naming City Policeman R. R. Davis as the recipient of "protection money."

Indictments returned yesterday brought the number of city policemen involved in the inquiry to six.

More graft and bribery indictments will be returned before the grand jury.

STRIKERS RULED STILL 'EMPLOYEES'

Supreme Court Upholds
NLRB Order and Accepts Appeal on TVA.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—The supreme court decided by a 7-to-0 vote today that a workman who goes on strike is still an employee of his company within the meaning of the national labor relations act and therefore is entitled to the protection of that act.

In so ruling, the court upheld an order of the National Labor Board instructing the Mackay Radio & Telegraph Company to reinstate in its San Francisco office five strikers who, the board said, had not been taken back because they had been active in a labor union.

Justice Roberts delivered the ruling that workmen on strike retain the protection of the act if its provisions barring unfair labor practices have been violated.

Justices Cardozo and Reed did not participate. The justices decided the board's failure to follow "its usual practice" of submitting a trial examiner's tentative report to the company, and then conducting hearings on the company's objections to the report, did not call for reversal of the reinstatement order.

There was no positive indication.

Farley Picks Split Ticket In Pennsylvania Primary

Democratic National Chairman Says 'Only Solution' Is To Nominate CIO-Backed Kennedy Today for Governor and Earle for Senator.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—(AP)—The Democratic party's high command stepped into Pennsylvania's New Deal factional war today in an election-eve move for harmony.

From both sides came reports decrying "interference" in the state fight.

National Chairman James A. Farley, fearful that wounds of the slashing campaign would hurt the party's chances in the November general election, proposed a fusion slate of one major candidate from each of the opposing factions.

One upshot was new emphasis cast upon the role of Labor Leader John L. Lewis, whose political power receives a test in tomorrow's primary balloting.

Farley made his plea in a statement from New York. The "only solution," he said, is to nominate CIO-backed Thomas Kennedy for Governor and Governor George H. Earle for senator. They head opposing slates. The battle for party supremacy in the state, Farley added, "imperils the success of the Democratic party in the November election."

Farley's proposal, in effect, was to sacrifice Philadelphia's Mayor S. Davis Wilson, running for the senate nomination on Kennedy's slate, and Charles Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh lawyer, candidate for the gubernatorial nomination with Earle.

Earle quickly condemned Farley's interference as "unwise," reaffirmed support of his ticket mate, Jones, and fired a blast at CIO Chieftain Lewis who with Senator Joseph F. Guffey is backing the Kennedy-Wilson lineup. Wilson asserted Farley's statement would be "resented." He cried "double cross."

Said Earle: "I regret that Mr. Farley has unwisely seen fit to come in at the eleventh hour and interfere in a purely local primary. That is not the function of a national chairman. . . . Every man on this ticket is a 100 per cent Roosevelt Democrat."

"I am certain—Mr. Farley to the contrary—that the Democrats of Pennsylvania will not turn their party over to John L. Lewis in the form of Thomas Kennedy."

With J. P. Morgan.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—(AP)—Edward T. Stotesbury, who rose from a $16-a-month job as clerk to membership in the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company and power in the financial world, died tonight. He was 89.

For many years he was active in politics. He was treasurer of the Republican national committee in the Theodore Roosevelt campaign in 1904 and the Taft campaign in 1908.

He often had been called the richest man in Philadelphia. The extent of the fortune he built in half a century in the financial field was subject to conjecture.

Stotesbury had been under a physician's care for several weeks for treatment of a heart condition. He left his home at suburban White Marsh today to attend a meeting in the city.

He was stricken ill as he was driving to the meeting.

SHELL OF HOTEL PERILS WORKERS

Army of Rescuers Toil Hour After Hour Without Regard to Safety.

By LUKE GREENE.

The grim hulk of what was once the Terminal hotel stood silent yesterday as an army of firemen and city workmen toiled hour after hour between its menacing walls in search of more bodies they believed to be entombed beneath debris and wreckage.

Already the building had claimed 26 lives in the most disastrous fire of Atlanta's history, and the leaning walls seemed ready to close in on the group of hardy workmen.

But the men beneath those walls apparently were not mindful of the threatening giant. Doggedly, feverishly they sweated and toiled, with little to inspire them to greater effort. Even when they had attained their goal—when they had removed every plank and every timber from the northwest corner of the building.

The death toll reached 26 last night in a fire which raced from basement to roof of the Terminal hotel at Spring and Mitchell streets early yesterday morning, swiftly turning the five-story building into a blazing charnel house.

The bodies of two unidentified men, burned and battered beyond recognition, were removed shortly after 9 o'clock last night, from under tons of debris on the Spring street side of the building, near where the hotel desk formerly stood.

Several thousand persons watched as firemen and others searched for bodies. Work of clearing away wreckage continued all night under glaring brilliance of three powerful floodlights.

14 Slide to Safety.

The number of bodies expected to be found in the wreckage was reduced considerably last night after it was learned that 14 men, at first believed to have perished in the fire, saved themselves by sliding down a rope dangling from a painter's scaffold suspended near the roof.

The men were playing cards in a room on the third floor, in a front corner of the building when the fire broke out. As flames and smoke shot upward from the basement, where the fire started, the men scrambled to save themselves.

They grabbed hold of the dangling rope, and came downward. Several of them let go and fell short distances to the sidewalk. But they were unhurt and out of the hotel, which became a raging inferno within a few minutes.

News that these men were saved caused a readjustment of estimates of the number of bodies still to be found. The names of

GALE-LASHED SHIPS APPEAL FOR HELP

Cutter Speeds to Aid of Trawler as Another Tows
Schooner.

BOSTON, May 16.—(AP)—New England coast guard vessels to-night plowed through heavy swells on rescue missions precipitated by a savage week-end gale that took three lives.

The cutter Argo, which had started to the aid of a three-masted schooner in distress off New Hampshire, changed its course in response to an appeal from the Boston trawler Patrick J. O'Hara. Details were not given.

The cutter Algonquin meanwhile towed the schooner Stewart T. Salter toward Gloucester. The cutter removed the water-logged vessel's crew of seven last night.

At Martha's Vineyard, the cutter Faunce and shore station surfboats sought the bodies of three Provincetown fishermen, lost when the 30-foot trawlers Lady of Rosary and Two Sisters filled with water and capsized.

Has "Always Been a Gump" About Politics

Claiming to be a "gump" about politics, Judge James E. Brown, veteran mayor of Newnan, pictured here, wonders why it "does not beckon more alluringly to men of ability and character in these modern days."

Judge Brown, now serving his fifth term as head of Newnan's city government, is also a former newspaperman, politician, and is United States commissioner of the northern Georgia district.

Octogenarian Mayor of Newnan Reminisces on Old-Time Politics

Judge James E. Brown, Now Ending Ninth Year as City's Chief Executive, Not So Sure of Ability of Present General Assemblymen.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.
Staff Correspondent.
NEWNAN, Ga., May 16.—Judge James E. Brown, 84-year-old Newnan mayor, and one of the most picturesque characters in Georgia politics, is regarded as the sage of political activity in Coweta county. He owned and edited the Newnan Herald 40 years, before his retirement from all activities except politics.

Judge Brown, who also is United States commissioner of the northern district of Georgia, as well as rounding out his ninth consecutive year as mayor, believes politics is not what it used to be.

He remembers the hectic days when he and a small group of young Democrats revolted against the regulars in the campaign of 1893 and won the nomination of former Governor William W. Atkinson.

"Men of Real Caliber."
"In those days we had men of real caliber who sought and held public office," Judge Brown said. "We don't seem to have so many of them now."

Judge Brown served as a member of the Georgia state senate with W. J. Norther, of Sparta, who became Governor; Dr. H. H. Carlton, of Athens, who was president of the senate; Tom B. Cabiness, of Forsyth, who served later as congressman; John Maddox, of Rome, father of Ed Maddox; Bob Falligant, of Savannah, who later was a judge, and several other outstanding Georgians.

With a whimsical smile on his face today, Judge Brown reminisced over "the good old days," and wondered why politics does not now "beckon more alluringly to men of ability and character in these modern days."

Present Assemblymen.
"I do not mean that to reflect on a single person now in public office," he said. "I mean merely it appears to me people are more interested in present in their own affairs than in public service."

Judge Brown was a personal friend of Evan P. Howell, father of the late Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution. He also was one of Clark Howell's friends and admirers.

Among his other intimates on The Constitution were Frank L. Stanton, Georgia's first poet laureate, and Joel Chandler Harris, creator of Uncle Remus.

"I don't want to talk too much about myself," Judge Brown said. "I just happened to be interested in politics from the time I first began, to take an interest in anything."

Formerly an Editor.
Under questioning, he said he established the Harris County Weekly, at Hamilton, in 1877, and continued to edit it until 1886. He was postmaster under the presidency of the late Grover Cleveland, and has been United States commissioner in this district since 1920.

He managed the campaign of O. B. Stevens, father-in-law of State Attorney General M. J. Yeomans, for commissioner of agriculture; Captain Bob Park, for state treasurer, and Jim Price, for commissioner of agriculture. Price later became a member of the railway commission.

"I've always been a gump about politics," he smiled.

When Judge Brown ran for mayor of Newnan the first time in 1929, he defeated two opponents, and when he came up for re-election two years later, he had opposition. Since that time, he has had none. He still has the remainder of this year and 1939 to serve on his present term.

Present Assemblymen.
"Only about one out of every 100 members of the present legislature stacks up with the general ability of those we had a long time ago," Judge Brown said. "They are now passing the craziest legislation imaginable."

Mayor Brown listed a number of imposing civic improvements which have been made since he became mayor.

Among them were: Two sewage disposal units costing $80,000; a 500,000-gallon city water tank and other waterworks improvements costing between $30,000 and $40,000; two new schools, costing about $50,000, and establishment of Pickett athletic field, lighted for night baseball and football. The field also has a public swimming pool and tennis courts, and is one of the best equipped in this section of the state.

PRESIDENT BLAMED FOR BRITISH SLUMP

Come To Terms With Business, Viscount Urges.

WEYMOUTH, England, May 16.—(AP)—Viscount Horne, one-time chancellor of the exchequer, today attacked President Roosevelt's industrial recession.

In a political speech the banker who headed the exchequer in 1921-22 declared:

"If you could have a revival in America and if President Roosevelt could come to terms with his businessmen instead of fighting all the time against their interests, the condition of the world in general would be of far greater advantage and benefit than it is."

He concluded that "I am told we shall see a great change by autumn."

member of the board of regents of the University of Maryland, became first vice president—an office that often leads to the federation's presidency.

Mrs. LaFell Dickinson, of Keene, N. H., won a three-way race for the second vice presidency. She polled 522 votes to 207 for Mrs. John S. Harvey, of Huntington, W. Va., and 177 for Mrs. Harold G. Bogert, of Akron, Ohio.

Mrs. J. L. B. Buck, of Richmond, Va., was elected treasurer without opposition.

Mrs. Dunbar, succeeding Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla., as president, said her public health program would embrace not only advancement of human welfare, but also peace and a return to spiritual principles and values.

A "ladies' agreement" tempered campaigning of the candidates through the early days of the convention, but they worked up support behind the scenes and more than 900 of the 1,142 voting delegates turned out at the polls. Most of them not voting already had left for their homes.

Mrs. Dunbar, a widow and the mother of two grown daughters, long has been interested in public health, and for the last 22 years has been executive president of the Oregon Tuberculosis Association.

The federation urged in a resolution adopted today that the United States be authorized to adopt economic measures, "not including war," against any nation which invades another in violation of a treaty.

Another resolution endorsed the principle of the Hull reciprocal trade treaties.

Uniform state marriage and divorce laws were endorsed in a third resolution, and a fourth asked a continuance of the "high standards" of the National Park System.

She also has served as president of the Women's Baptist Missionary Union.

Author of Brochures.
Mrs. Ritchie is the author of brochures on Parliamentary law and on federation activities. She also has written "Outline for Study of Educational Conditions in Georgia," "Outline Studies of Community Conditions With Suggested Activities," "The Clubwoman's Collection of Priced Recipes," "Correlation of Masterpieces of Art, Literature and Music for Textbooks," speeches and addresses on various phases of club work, and poems.

She is immediate past president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, and former state corresponding secretary.

Her husband is a professor in the school of education at the University of Georgia here. They have one son, Horace B. Ritchie, who is taking post-graduate work in law at Harvard University.

In launching their drive for Mrs. Ritchie's election as recording secretary, Georgia clubwomen, meeting recently in Albany, presented her with a horseshoe of flowers, and sent with her to Kansas City a strong endorsement by leaders in virtually every field of organized women in the state. A large number of leaders in public life, including Governor Rivers and Senators George and Russell, joined in the tribute of endorsement with educators, club leaders and business and professional leaders.

BRITISH CABINET IS 'RESHUFFLED'

Attacks Against Air Rearmament Causes Premier To Make Change.

LONDON, May 16.—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain met the cabinet today to reshuffle his cabinet.

Viscount Swinton resigned the post of secretary of state for air, where he had been the center of parliamentary attacks charging an air program was lagging, and was succeeded by Lord Halifax.

Sir Kingsley Wood, minister of health went to Walter Elliot, who was secretary of state for Scotland.

Lord Swinton's former post went to Lieutenant Colonel John Colville, who entered the cabinet for the first time. He had been financial secretary of the treasury.

The former William G. A. Ormsby-Gore, who went to the house of lords as Baron Harlech on the death of his father, resigned as colonial secretary.

Malcolm MacDonald, national laborite leader of the late Ramsey MacDonald, took the colonial ministry and his former post of dominions secretary went to Lord Stanley, heir of the Earl of Derby.

Lord Stanley's appointment placed two brothers in the cabinet as Oliver Stanley is president of the board of trade.

It was estimated Britain's air program would have to be more than tripled if the nation is to reach the level given Germany by Field Marshal Hermann Goering.

Another Relieved.
This is double the number it planned to have in active military service by April 1, 1939. Unofficial estimates credited Germany with having 2,100 first-line planes at the present time.

Lord Winterston, who acted as Lord Swinton's deputy in the house of commons, was understood to have been relieved of all air ministry duties.

He faced criticism from all parties for what was called "weak handling" of last Thursday's air debate, which was one of the causes of Swinton's resignation.

Past State Deputy Victor Markwater, Augusta, and Deputy Walsh were elected delegates to the supreme convention.

Resolutions were adopted urging "federal legislation in the nature of peacetime espionage or alien and sedition laws be enacted" as a means of fighting communism.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., May 16.—(AP)—A "last roundup" call for the campfire comrades who fought here in 1863 was issued by the federal government today, urging the last survivors of the Blue and the Gray to attend a joint reunion of Union and Confederate veterans June 29 to July 6.

More than 8,000 engraved invitations, signed by Secretary of War Woodring and the other four members of the federal commission appointed to aid Pennsylvania in the 75th anniversary observance of the Gettysburg battle were placed in the mails.

To aid the veterans in making this pilgrimage, the government is paying all traveling expenses, food and housing costs during the one-week observance. The men of the north and south will live in separate camps, on either side of the meandering road leading to the $60,000 "Eternal Peace" memorial, now rising on Oak Ridge, where front-line ranks of either army met in the opening day's encounter.

POSTPONES COUNCIL*Aldermen Take Up Liquor

Because only three aldermen were present, city council's meeting, scheduled yesterday, was postponed until 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The body is to consider creation of a housing authority for Atlanta, a number of liquor license applications, and salary raises for a dozen city employees.

A quorum of the board of councilmen appeared when City Clerk Joe Richardson called the roll but Aldermen I. Gloor Hailey, Frank Reynolds and Dan G. Bridges were absent. The city attorney, Jack Savage, ruled that no business could be transacted unless four members of the six-man aldermanic board were present. Therefore, Alderman Robert Carpenter, mayor pro tem, adjourned the session.

Alderman Reynolds is recovering from a fracture of the leg and Hailey is ill. Bridges is laid up with an infected foot.

TAMPA, Fla., May 16.—(AP)—Circuit Judge Harry N. Sandler today refused a plea of guilty by Paul Bunge, German poet who confessed he killed his wife and two young daughters here early May 2, and ordered his trial for Friday.

Judge Sandler made public a report by a lunacy commission declared Bunge mentally competent.

In refusing to accept Bunge's plea of guilty last Friday to first-degree murder indictments, Judge Sandler said it would be best if the case were submitted to a jury. He accepted a plea of not guilty.

ICKES QUESTIONED ON SPEND-LEND BILL*Secretary Says PWA Has Enough Projects To Exhaust Proposed Fund.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes told a senate appropriations subcommittee today, the Public Works Administration already has on file enough projects to exhaust the $965,000,000 fund contemplated for PWA in the $3,000,000,000 spending-lending bill.

Ickes said work could be started on some of the projects within three months, and that the peak of construction works could be reached next spring.

Of the 2,700 PWA projects on file when operations were halted last fall, Ickes said, 80 per cent are "alive" and others could be added quickly.

The PWA administrator gave the committee figures showing that for each hour spent at the site of construction, approximately 2 1/2 hours of work are provided in industry "behind the lines."

SENATE VOTES OUT IN HIGHWAY FUNDS

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—A bill curtailing regular federal aid highway funds more than $160,000,000 in 1938 and 1941 received senate approval today and sent back to the house.

The senate measure authorized a total of $314,500,000 in regular federal aid funds for the two years compared with $476,000,000 previously approved by the house. Administration supporters said an unused $150,000,000 from previous highway fund authorizations and $425,000,000 earmarked for highway construction in the pending relief program, would more than offset the reductions in the regular authorizations.

COTTON FIRE HERE
BURNS 200 BALES*Blaze Discovered at Candler Warehouse Early in Morning.

A blaze that broke out yesterday morning in section 20 of the Candler warehouse on Glenn street, between Murphy and Stewart avenues, damaged approximately 200 bales of cotton before it was brought under control by Fort McPherson firemen and off-duty Atlanta firemen.

The fire started at about 5 o'clock and was discovered by S. J. Carlton, night watchman. Fire apparatus was brought from Fort McPherson to augment equipment from the Atlanta fire department.

The blaze was controlled quickly and the burning cotton was removed from the building, which was not damaged. Firemen played water on the bales until noon yesterday.

Other sections of the giant warehouse were shut off from the blaze by fireproof doors. Company officials said the damaged cotton is covered by insurance.

YEOMANS PAYS FEE
AS RACE ENTRANT*Wood May Be Opponent;
Kendrick Likely Labor
Choice for Legislature.

Two more political candidates paid their state fees here yesterday while Atlanta labor prepared to nominate its candidate for the legislature at a meeting at the Labor Temple on Trinity avenue tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock.

Attorney General M. J. Yeomans, of Dawson, who has held his present position since 1933, qualified by paying his $250 fee, and Judge Robert N. Hardeman, of Louisville, who has been judge of the middle circuit superior court since 1915, also qualified for re-election.

Yeomans has no qualified opposition, although rumors hold that former Congressman John S. Wood, of Canton, may enter for this post.

Atlanta labor unions probably will select Ciero Kendrick, incumbent legislator, to represent them again in the house, it was said yesterday.

Dewey L. Johnson, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, called the meeting to name labor's choice. Organized labor for the past several years has sponsored a labor candidate for one of the three Fulton legislative posts.

NEW DEAL IS ISSUE
IN S. C. SENATE RACE*Johnston Would Use F.D.R.
Springboard for Place of 'Cotton Ed' Smith.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—The White House offices of President Roosevelt served today as the springboard for South Carolina's "New Deal" Governor, Olin Johnston, to enter the senatorial race against the veteran Democratic senator, Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, opponent of some Roosevelt policies.

In a statement typed on blue-tinted paper and handed to newsmen when he left a conference with the President, Johnston said he had called on Mr. Roosevelt upon the latter's invitation and had "discussed the political situation in South Carolina."

Then, announcing his candidacy, Johnston said: "My campaign for the senate will be based upon a record of constant, unshakable loyalty to the Democratic platform and the head of our party, President Roosevelt."

The 41-year-old Governor is the fourth candidate to enter the race against the 72-year-old Smith, now serving his thirtieth year in the senate. The party nomination, to be made in a primary August 28, is tantamount to election.

Other candidates are State Senator Edgar Brown, of Barnwell, who also announced himself as a New Deal candidate; Ashton Williams, of Florence, and Theo Vaughn, of Clemson College.

Johnston mentioned wage-hour legislation as a possible issue in the campaign. Smith opposed the administration's wage-hour bill and the President's supreme court reorganization proposal.

SUICIDE VERDICT
IN MATRON'S DEATH*Wife's Threat To Take Life Related by Husband.

A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday morning in the death of Mrs. Morris Davis, 26, who was found dead of a shotgun wound early Sunday in her home at 72 Crumley street, S. E.

The woman's husband testified at the hearing that his wife had threatened to kill herself several times during the past month. Radio Patrolmen J. W. Cody and R. V. Paschal said her head was virtually blown off by the blast of the shotgun.

Funeral services for Mrs. Davis were held yesterday afternoon in the Prospect Methodist church, conducted by Dr. Lester Haney. Burial was in the churchyard, under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

LEAP OVER RADIATOR HALTS ESCAPE EFFORT

William Dorris, 22-year-old negro, made a short-lived and painful escape from police yesterday morning after he had been arrested on a charge of driving with improper brakes.

The negro was being taken into the police station when he broke and ran, but the car of A. W. Edwards, of 155 East Lake drive, N. E., blocked his path. Undaunted, Dorris made a leap over the car's radiator, but his right leg caught on the ornament and he suffered an 18-inch slash.

Ambulance attendants worked 10 minutes before extricating him from the jagged ornament. He was treated at Grady hospital, where doctors said he missed severing the large leg artery by inches.

Last night, he was behind the bars.

REFUGEE BODY ELECTS NEW YORKER AS HEAD

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—The President's advisory committee on political refugees today elected James G. McDonald, New York, chairman, and Dr. Samuel C. Caverly, New York, secretary. The State Department, where the meeting was held, announced appointment of Robert Pell, divisional assistant in the department as assistant to Myron Taylor, the American delegate to the international committee on refugees. George Brandt, a foreign service officer, also was designated as an assistant.

JURIST, EX-GEORGIAN,

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 16.—(AP)—William Madison Henry, widely known jurist, student of history, and pioneer resident of north Georgia, died this morning in a Chattanooga hospital following a one-week illness.

Henry, 85, had practiced law for 50 years. For 12 years he was judge of the Rome, Ga., superior court circuit.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get to the cause. If you're constipated, don't fiddle around with make-shift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are it's simple if you eat only what most people do: meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." An "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestine and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is crisp crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

DENTAL DEATH TOLL IS CITED BY MORREY*Fatalities Comparable To Those on Highways, Speaker Asserts.

MACON, Ga., May 16.—(AP)—Dr. Lon W. Morrey, educational director for the American Dental Association, told delegates to the Georgia Dental Association convention here this afternoon that the annual death toll traceable to dental neglect is comparable with the fatality rate due to automobile accidents.

Dr. Morrey spoke at the dental health education luncheon. Governor Rivers was scheduled to speak, but he had been called to Washington on state business.

"The solution to society's dental problems," Dr. Morrey said, "lies in education, and emphasis of such education should be placed on prevention of disease."

Research has proved at least 70 per cent of serious dental ailments can be prevented, he declared. He cited evidence showing how the A. D. A. helps combat the dental neglect menace.

The luncheon meeting followed several addresses on the morning session, which attracted more than 400 delegates to Macon. The Georgia Dental Assistants' Association also is meeting here.

TWO MORE FSA LOANS ARE MADE IN WILKES

WASHINGTON, Ga., May 16.—Three Wilkes county farmers have received Farm Security Administration checks and, after years of tenant farming, have acquired their own farms.

B. O. Stevens, who originally was selected to receive the first FSA check in Georgia, but who lost that honor to Jim Webb Fanning, has received a $2,250 loan with which he has bought the farm he formerly operated as a tenant. Sidney Willis, negro, has received a $2,500 FSA loan and purchased 175 acres of land from W. N. Adams, leaving $1,000 for improvements.

Fanning received a check for $2,500 at a recent ceremony at which Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. made the presentation.

Foolish Reasons Blamed for Half Of Forest Fires

Nearly half of Georgia's forest fires are started intentionally for "foolish reasons," Dr. H. N. Wheeler, of Washington, chief lecturer of the National Forest Service, said here yesterday.

Visiting the department's Atlanta offices before starting a lecture tour through the northern part of the state, he said that education would do much toward reducing the annual fire loss.

"Thousands of acres are burned every year to do away with malaria or for some other equally foolish reason," Dr. Wheeler said. "As soon as people find out that this won't do any good, there will be less fires."

Forest protection is becoming increasingly important, he said, because of the growth of the paper industry in the southeast. He pointed out that the percentage of loss in the protected areas last year was far below the rest of the state.

RAINS FAIL TO HALT SPANISH OFFENSIVE

Rebel Warplanes Drop Bombs on 6,624-Foot Peak in Drive.

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Frontier), May 16.—(AP)—Insurgents smashed their way through government lines east of Teruel today despite heavy rains and flooded grounds.

Driving toward Mora de Rubielos, insurgent forces reached the outskirts of two villages, Valdeinarnes and Alcala de la Selva, in the general offensive against the coastal provinces of Valencia and Castellon de la Plana.

Alcala de la Selva is 20 miles east of Teruel and approximately 10 miles north of Mora de Rubielos. Valdeinarnes is six miles northeast of Alcala de la Selva.

Insurgents attacked government positions between the two villages with tanks, airplanes and heavy artillery.

Warplanes which flew despite mist and intermittent downpours dropped tons of explosives in the ranks of militiamen entrenched in the sector on the slopes of the 6,624-foot Penarroya peak.

Advances from the front asserted the mountain fighting took a heavy toll among the insurgent attackers as well as the defending militiamen.

Some 20 miles northwest of this sector there was heavy fighting in the Iglesuela Del Cid zone.

Insurgents there sought to reach a highway south of Iglesuela Del Cid in order to resume their delayed march on Mosquera, nine miles southeast of Valdeinarnes.

LA FOLLETTE HITS RAILROAD PAY CUT*Senator Proposes To Withhold $300,000,000 RFC Loans to Lines.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—Senator La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin, told the senate today that if the railroads persisted in their efforts to bring about wage reductions, he would oppose legislation making $300,000,000 in RFC loans available to them.

The railroads have proposed a 15 per cent cut in wages, effective July 1.

La Follette said he thought "it is not justice" for the railroads to ask employees to give up $250,000,000 yearly pay while congress was being asked to "prop up their tottering financial structure."

Senator Truman, Democrat, Missouri, said that if the railroads had informed the senate banking committee they intended to ask for pay cuts, the RFC lending bill would never have been approved by that group.

Support for La Follette's stand came also from Senators Hatch, Democrat, New Mexico; Maloney, Democrat, Connecticut; McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, and Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota.

STOCK PRODUCTION URGED BY JARNAGIN

Georgian Addresses Tennessee Agricultural Club.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 16.—(AP)—Increased live stock production was advocated today by Dr. Milton P. Jarnagin, head of the animal husbandry department of the University of Georgia, for farm prosperity in the south.

"Agriculture must be saved from its present plight," he said in an address before a banquet sponsored by the University of Tennessee Agricultural Club, "if the south and the nation are to be rehabilitated."

Dr. Jarnagin suggested "live stock offers the most hope."

"I know of no better dependence for the farmer than the time-tried, profit producing, sow-o-w-hen-steer-and-lamb combination which has been called the prosperity quintuplets."

He described as "heartening information" statistics showing an increase recently in the combined number of cattle, sheep and hogs slaughtered under federal inspection.

WAYCROSS, Ga., May 16.—(AP) Firemen aided by other city employees and volunteers extinguished a blaze here today which destroyed a planing mill and a frame dwelling, damaged several other homes and threatened to spread to the surrounding residential and business sections.

At one time the situation became so serious calls for help were sent to fire departments of near-by towns. These calls were canceled when firemen brought the flames under control.

The Hiers planing mill was destroyed. No estimate of the loss was available as the mill operator was reported critically ill. All the mill equipment was believed beyond repair.

No one was hurt.

EIGHT ARE INDICTED BY GRAFT JURORS

Five City Policemen and Three Former Deputies Are Named in Probe.

present grand jury term ends, Special Prosecutor E. E. Andrews said. He indicated "two or three" indictments may be returned by the jury today when it convenes for a routine session.

Trial Date Is Set.

Meanwhile, trial date for former Deputies Howard and Schilling, first indicted by the past grand jury, has been set for June 1, it was learned last night. Bond for the four city policemen and one ex-deputy sheriff named in the new bills was set at $1,000 each.

Bailey, indicted on one count was charged with accepting $50 from Earl Kite on March 4, 1937, and agreeing not to arrest Kite in "his illegal traffic in alcoholic beverages," and to furnish protection against arrest.

King, indicted on two counts, was charged with receiving $25 from Jimmie Roberts as "a reward to influence his official behavior in the official discharge of his duties" as a city policeman on March 2, 1937. The second count charged King accepted a $240 bribe from H. L. Cobb June 4, 1937, in return for his promise not to arrest Cobb for illegal liquor traffic.

Jimmie Roberts Named.

Scoggins and Aycock, indicted jointly on a two-count bill, were charged with furnishing protection to Jimmie Roberts on April 4, 1937, in return for a $25 "pay-off." The second count charged they accepted $25 from Paul Johnson March 3, 1937, not to arrest him for violating the prohibition law.

Former Deputy Sheriff Hulsey was indicted on two counts charging he accepted $200 bribe from Jimmie Roberts April 4, 1937, to refrain from arresting him for bootlegging activities. The second count charged that Hulsey, jointly with Howard and Schilling, accepted a $1,000 bribe from A. T. Jeans, alias Pee Wee Burns, not to confiscate his liquor or arrest him on December 17, 1937.

The new bribery count against City Policeman Davis charged that, jointly with Bailey, he accepted $50 from Earl Kite March 4, 1937, not to arrest Kite for violating the prohibition law.

$1,000 in "Hush" Money. Four new counts against Howard and Schilling charged they accepted a $100 bribe February 2, 1937, from Jimmie Roberts in the first count. Another count charged they accepted a $100 bribe from George Campbell May 3, 1937, not to arrest him and a woman, Beulah Keyes, for selling whisky. The other new counts charged the two with accepting a $50 bribe from Earl Kite January 5, 1937, and that accepting jointly with Hulsey $1,000 "hush" money from Burns just before Christmas last year.

Policeman Davis already has been suspended from the city department. Chief M. A. Hornsby has announced he will suspend all city policemen involved in the grand jury probe as soon as he is officially notified of the charges against the men.

The grand jury returned its indictments yesterday after hearing from more than a score of witnesses.

STRIKERS RULED STILL 'EMPLOYES'

Supreme Court Upholds NLRB Order and Accepts Appeal on TVA.

tion from the court, however, as to whether it would take the same view toward similar failures in other labor board cases involving different circumstances.

The Ford Motor Company and the Republic Steel Corporation, among others, have complained in other litigation that the board's failure to give them trial examinations and hear objections about them had prejudiced their rights, and the board recently moved to withdraw its orders against these companies for further procedure.

Republic Case. In one of its rulings today, the supreme tribunal ordered the three judges of the federal circuit court of appeals at Philadelphia to show cause why they should not permit the labor board to withdraw its order against the Republic Steel Corporation, directing reinstatement of 5,000 workers. Argument of this question was set for next Monday.

The court of appeals refused last week to authorize withdrawal, whereupon government attorneys asked the supreme court to compel withdrawal by a writ of mandamus.

The Labor Board's request for recall of the order against Republic Steel followed a supreme court decision of April 25, criticizing the secretary of agriculture for procedure used in reducing fees authorized at the Kansas City stockyards. Board officials said they wanted to reopen the Republic case for further procedure in the light of this criticism.

To Review TVA Case. The supreme court also agreed today to review litigation challenging constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley Authority's power activities.

Eighteen private utilities joined in the appeal against a three-judge federal court in eastern Tennessee ruled that they had "no immunity from lawful competition even if their business be curtailed or destroyed." The companies contended that TVA competition threatened to injure, if not destroy, their business.

Justice Reed did not participate in the decision to review.

In other decisions, the court: 1. Invalidated a portion of a 1935 Indiana revenue law levying a gross income tax on sales made outside the state by Indiana firms. The court held, however, that the state could tax interest from obligations of Indiana municipalities. Justice McReynolds dissented and Justice Black dissented in part with the majority. Justice Cardozo did not participate.

No Mellon Refund. 2. Held that the government need not refund $390,000 of additional income tax for 1920 collected from Andrew Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, and his brother, R. B. Mellon, of Pittsburgh. Both men are dead, but the appeal was made by their estates. Justice Cardozo and Reed did not participate.

The high tribunal's decision in the Mackay case reversed a ruling of the ninth circuit court of appeals, which had refused to enforce the labor board's reinstatement order. The appeals court contended the men had severed their employment by taking part in the strike.

The Mackay company contended that there was no basis for the board's order because there had been no finding that the strikers had stopped work because of or in connection with any labor dispute. The record showed the men struck because of dissatisfaction with negotiations for a contract on wages and working conditions.

Company's Argument. The company also argued that the board had no authority under the labor act to compel an employer to reinstate workers who abandoned negotiations and gone on strike prior to any unfair labor practice.

Justice Roberts, speaking for the court, conceded that the company had not been guilty of any unfair labor practice before the strike but held that, within the intent of the act, a labor dispute existed in connection with the strike.

Under the act, Roberts said, the strikers remained employees "and were protected against the unfair labor practices denounced by it."

Was an Afterthought. Asserting that the board's finding of discrimination against some of the strikers was supported by evidence, Roberts continued:

"The board found, and we cannot say that its finding is unsupported, that in taking back six (of 11 men) and excluding five who struck because of dissatisfaction with negotiations for a contract on wages and working conditions, the respondent's officials discriminated against the latter on account of their union activities and that the excuse given that they did not apply until after the quota was full was an afterthought and not the true reason for the discrimination against them."

Denying that the board's order violated the fifth amendment to the constitution, Roberts said: "The plain meaning of the act is that if men strike in connection with a current labor dispute their action is not to be construed as a renunciation of the employment relation and they remain employees for the remedial purposes specified in the act."

Black's Dissent. In invalidating the portion of the Indiana law taxing receipts from goods sold in other states, the high tribunal reversed a decision of the Indiana supreme court.

Justice Roberts, speaking for the majority, held that the tax violated the clause of the constitution relating to interstate commerce by subjecting it to the risk of a double tax burden.

Justice Black took the position that state taxes on gross re-

Wife Pricks Tires; Keeps Hubby Home

RICHMOND, Va., May 16.—(AP)—An irate housewife told city and state police today how to keep a husband at home—particularly her own.

Her recipe: Nails driven into the tires of the family auto.

Four city and state officers, answering a radio alarm, found the nail-driving job complete, and two of the car's tires flat.

The housewife, surveying the results of her handiwork, eyed the officers. "Well," she said tartly, "that'll keep him at home."

The officers beat a retreat.

cepts from interstate commerce were not discriminatory and did not impose "extraordinary burdens."

He argued taxation and regulation were not synonymous; that all state, county or city taxes affecting interstate commerce did not regulate in the constitutional sense; and that "unquestionably, taxes can be levied for revenue only."

Black said further that the majority's construction of the commerce clause "actually serves to impose an unfair and discriminatory burden upon local interstate business." He contended that until congress, in the exercise of its plenary power over interstate commerce, fixes a different policy, it would appear desirable that the states should remain free to adopt tax systems imposing uniform and nondiscriminatory taxes upon interstate and intrastate business alike.

FLAME LOSS DRAWS FLORIDA SYMPATHY

Gainesville Wires Condolences; One State Victim.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., May 16.—(AP)—City Manager J. B. Mobley Jr., of Gainesville, today extended to the city of Atlanta Gainesville's "deepest sympathy" for the death of at least 25 persons who lost their lives in an early morning hotel fire.

One of the victims, Mrs. O. E. Collar, was a resident of High Springs, Fla.

A telegram addressed to Mayor W. B. Hartsfield, of Atlanta, Mobley said: "Gainesville extends to Atlanta its deepest sympathy in what has been described as your deadliest fire. We sincerely hope the death list will not exceed those already listed, which includes a resident of this county."

Gainesville on April 25 experienced a disastrous fire which destroyed virtually an entire city block with a loss estimated at $300,000. No lives were lost but four persons were injured.

Georgia Woman Author Feted by Press Club

Mrs. Mark Ethridge Talks of Her Family, Books, Life and Olives.

By YOLANDE GWIN.
Dining on a train and eating ripe olives is the height of luxury for a young woman who has written and had two books published. She is Willie Snow Ethridge, a native of Georgia, who wrote "As Live and Breathe" and "Mingled Yarn," the latter to be released soon. Mrs. Ethridge attended Wesleyan Female College in Macon and worked on the Macon telegraph, where she met her husband, Mark Foster Ethridge, who had returned to newspaper work from the World War. She served as a cub reporter on the paper and conducted a column for several years. In 1933 she was awarded a fellowship by the Carl Schurz Memorial for six months' study in Europe.

Yesterday at the party given in her honor by the Women's Press Club, Mrs. Ethridge talked informally about her work, life, her family—and olives.

"I adore ripe olives," she said, "to be able to have them at every meal would be a dream of luxury. When I came down to the States from Louisville I was thrilled by the death to think I would be on a train at mealtime, but as fate would have it, breakfast was the only meal I had and somehow ripe olives just don't go with grits, bacon and eggs."

Wife of Newspaper Manager.
Mrs. Ethridge, whose husband is general manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times, says she never reads "copy" on any of her work.

"When 'Mingled Yarn' was published, I asked Mark with pleading knees to read it," she said, "and was so afraid of what he would say and how it would be received that I locked myself in all day. After the longest day I ever spent, work came to my room and the only comment he made was that the pages were missing!"

Asked if her newspaperman husband approved of combining marriage and a career, the slim young writer laughed and said: "How could he when he married me when I was a cub reporter? But seriously, though, I try to do all my work when he is at the office and the children are at school. When the time comes for me to come home I hide every bit of paper, my pencils, and most of all, I close my typewriter and put out of sight!"

Mrs. Ethridge says the first thing she dreamed of buying with money from "As I Live and Breathe" was a rug for the front room in her "old Kentucky" home. The next thing she wanted were bookshelves for an outdoor terrace, but she did neither, for instead of money from her book coming Advance copies of "Mingled Yarn" were autographed yesterday by the author, Mrs. Willie Snow Ethridge, who was honored at a lively party given by the Women's Press Club.

In one lump sum, it was sent in installments.

"I just decided to use the family money for the rug and the bookshelves," she said.

Husband Not the Hero.
In her latest book, which centers around Ellen Clark, the daughter of a cotton mill owner in a Georgia town, and Buford Battle, a liberal young newspaperman, the author says that her newspaperman husband is absolutely not her hero.

"I know everyone will think I patterned Buford after my husband, but such is not the case. The present ending of the book is not the way it was first written. I had planned to let Buford leave Ellen and run away with Ginger, but sentiment got the best of me. After all, Ellen had had a rather hard time."

The young author says she prefers fiction writing because "looking up facts is too hard. Cotton mill conditions intrigue her, and she has written many articles on the subject. She went to the University of Georgia for a special course to study children's life in cotton mill centers. The first in which her latest book is written—1918-1930—is to Mrs. Ethridge the most colorful era in Georgia since Reconstruction days.

Georgia Book Next.
Mrs. Ethridge is working on a historical book on Georgia but admits that she can only "write 10 years at a time."

During her visit here yesterday and today as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Pope Brock, Mrs. Ethridge has been the center of a series of affairs in her honor. After the party given by the Women's Press Club yesterday, she was honored at dinner by the Macmillan Company, publishers, at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Today she will be honored at a luncheon and this afternoon the Atlanta alumnae of Wesleyan College will give a tea for her at Rich's. She is a 1920 graduate of Wesleyan.

Democratic primary, which comes off tomorrow, throwing the support of the administration behind two of the competing candidates for the party senatorial and gubernatorial nominations.

Commenting on this combination of developments, most of the eastern metropolitan papers are carrying stories out of Washington for Tuesday morning asserting that Mr. Roosevelt is prepared to intervene in the forthcoming Georgia September primary, just as he apparently has in South Carolina and Pennsylvania, not to mention the earlier cases of Florida, Kentucky and some of the other states.

IF RIVERS SEEKS SENATE, HARRIS MAY RUN
AUGUSTA, Ga., May 16.—(AP)—Speaker of the House Roy V. Harris will be a gubernatorial candidate in the primary this fall if Governor E. D. Rivers decides to enter the senatorial race against Senator Walter F. George and former Governor Eugene Talmadge, the Augusta Chronicle will say tomorrow.

The newspaper says it learned reliably that the veteran legislator has definitely made up his mind to run for Governor if Rivers does not seek re-election.

A staunch New Dealer, Harris has been a member of the Georgia legislature 16 years, 14 years in the house and two years in the senate. Ten of the years he represented Jefferson county, and for the past six years has been a member of the Richmond house delegation.

If Governor Rivers offers for re-election, the Chronicle will say it learned, Harris also will seek re-election as a member of the house of representatives.

On New Deal Ticket.
Should the present chief executive enter a three-cornered race with George and Talmadge, both of whom are announced candidates, the Augusta attorney will run for Governor on a straight New Deal ticket, the paper will say.

Entrance of Harris into the gubernatorial set-up will enlarge the field to five announced candidates, with the possibility that two more may seek the position of Governor.

Hugh Howell, of Atlanta, already has paid his qualifying fee, while three others have announced. They are Miles W. Barg, of Stone Mountain; E. S. Fuller, of Savannah, and Patrick C. Herrington, of Swainsboro.

Others mentioned as likely candidates are DeLacey Allen, of Albany, successful candidate in 1936 for lieutenant governor—a post never created—and Charles Redwine, unsuccessful candidate against Rivers two years ago.

From a reliable source, the Chronicle will say, however, it was learned that the possibility that Redwine will run for Governor is remote.

REA SERVICE BEGUN.
CAMILLA, Ga., May 16.—Lights burned in a part of Mitchell county for the first time today after 32 miles of an REA project were energized Saturday. Lights on five miles of the route were tested last Wednesday as a part of the REA third birthday celebration.

The morning papers, moreover, carried the announcement of Postmaster General Farley's intervention in the muddled Pennsylvania

Political implications of the Georgia Governor's visit, however, were uppermost in the speculation that turned on his presence at the White House for such a lengthy meeting with the President.

Accompanied by Leo Farrell, of the Constitution staff, Governor Rivers from the time of his arrival early this morning was besieged through the day with newspaper queries as to his future plans. The fact that Governor Olin D. Johnston, of South Carolina, a staunch New Deal supporter, just preceded him to the White House and there announced his candidacy for the senate against Senator Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, with apparent presidential sanction, acted to intensify the situation. At the capitol the Johnston announcement evoked much private comment and there had been free predictions that the Georgia Governor would do likewise.

and secretary of the Democratic National Committee.

The Governor will return to Atlanta tomorrow.

Both Senators George and Russell assured Governor Rivers that every application presented by Georgia would be pushed to the limit. The congressmen likewise assured the state's chief executive of their full support.

"There is no doubt in my mind that our state is far behind in getting federal money," Rivers told the delegation.

"During the previous state administration efforts to obtain our share were blocked in Atlanta because the administration did not want to join in the program."

Blames Administration.
"The fact that there is a constitutional limitation on Georgia's borrowing power hurt some, but for the most part the inaction was due to the state administration. We are trying to co-operate fully with the national administration and we believe we are due more than we are getting."

The Governor said the building program now under way was only the first step in his efforts to bring Georgia up to the standards of other states.

He explained the state faced "deplorable conditions" in the eleemosynary institutions and that $15,000,000 was needed for an adequate building program. Large expenditures also were needed, he said, in the university system.

"We missed the boat one time," he declared. "I don't want us to miss it again."

Asks Exemption.
Turning to the wage-hour bill, he urged a provision to exempt the naval stores industry from its requirements.

Rivers suggested that the wage-hour debate might offer the opportunity to call to the attention of congress the freight rate differentials which "penalize" southern industry. He endorsed the Ramspeck bill equalizing freight charges, but delegation members told him there was but little chance of its enactment at this session.

He also asked the delegation to press for a large appropriation for forest protection, for provisions in the relief bill to relieve states from matching road money, and for PWA authority to lend money for 50-year periods without interest.

He endorsed a bill reducing from two years to one year the minimum time that a strike must delay payment of unemployment compensation benefits after the state law is enacted.

FRENCH WILL ACQUIRE 100 PLANES FROM U. S.
PARIS, May 16.—(UP)—The air ministry announced tonight that, because French airplane manufacturers are unable to fill standing orders, the government has decided to purchase 100 planes in the United States.

The ministry's communique, which made no mention of the types of planes to be purchased, said it was believed that it would not be necessary to make further purchases abroad.

TOWN 'BLACKS OUT' FOR BIG BOMBERS
Swift Pursuit Ships Speed To Engage 'Enemy.'

FARMINGDALE, N. Y., May 16.—(AP)—The first act in a spectacular mock air raid on this village started tonight when five pursuit planes from the general headquarters air force, participating in tactical maneuvers along the north Atlantic seaboard, left Seversky Field to meet "enemy" bombers reported approaching from the east.

At the shriek of a fire department whistle, the entire population of the village and 2,500 other residents of the "besieged" area turned out their lights to simulate an air raid defense "black out."

As the speedy pursuit ships roared off the field, they were silhouetted against the piercing beams of eight anti-aircraft searchlights meeting to form a bridge of light over the field.

YOUTH IS INJURED.
WAYCROSS, Ga., May 16.—W. C. Sapp, 18, was confined to a hospital here today with serious knife wounds inflicted Saturday night. Police sought a negro, believed to have had an argument with Sapp shortly before the assault.

GOVERNOR DENIES POLITICS IN VISIT

Georgia's Chief Executive Confers With Roosevelt for More Than Hour.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16. President Roosevelt will receive an honorary degree from the University of Georgia at Athens in August, it was announced here today by Governor Rivers.

The Governor made the announcement following an extended White House conference. He said the President had accepted the invitation to go to Athens between August 10 and 15.

The announcement involving a personal visit and speech of the President in Georgia in the midst of the approaching state primary campaign climaxed a day of intense speculation regarding Governor Rivers' political plans.

The Governor insisted that no political significance was attached to his visit to the White House. He was with the President more than an hour.

Not Ready to Announce.
The Governor also said he is not yet ready to announce which office he will seek. Before leaving Atlanta, the Governor said his future political course would not be revealed until May 28, three days before the June 1 closing date for entries.

His arrival in Washington this morning was preceded by reports that his discussions with the President might determine whether he is to become a candidate to succeed himself or whether he will file as an opponent of Senator George.

The Governor was besieged throughout the day with newspaper queries regarding his future plans.

Referring to the honorary degree, the Governor said the invitation had been extended unanimously by the State Board of Regents at their meeting last Friday in Milledgeville.

Political Implications.

Georgia's Chief Executive Confers With Roosevelt for More Than Hour.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16. President Roosevelt will receive an honorary degree from the University of Georgia at Athens in August, it was announced here today by Governor Rivers.

The Governor made the announcement following an extended White House conference. He said the President had accepted the invitation to go to Athens between August 10 and 15.

The announcement involving a personal visit and speech of the President in Georgia in the midst of the approaching state primary campaign climaxed a day of intense speculation regarding Governor Rivers' political plans.

The Governor insisted that no political significance was attached to his visit to the White House. He was with the President more than an hour.

Not Ready to Announce.
The Governor also said he is not yet ready to announce which office he will seek. Before leaving Atlanta, the Governor said his future political course would not be revealed until May 28, three days before the June 1 closing date for entries.

His arrival in Washington this morning was preceded by reports that his discussions with the President might determine whether he is to become a candidate to succeed himself or whether he will file as an opponent of Senator George.

The Governor was besieged throughout the day with newspaper queries regarding his future plans.

Referring to the honorary degree, the Governor said the invitation had been extended unanimously by the State Board of Regents at their meeting last Friday in Milledgeville.

Political Implications.
Political implications of the Georgia Governor's visit, however, were uppermost in the speculation that turned on his presence at the White House for such a lengthy meeting with the President.

Accompanied by Leo Farrell, of the Constitution staff, Governor Rivers from the time of his arrival early this morning was besieged through the day with newspaper queries as to his future plans. The fact that Governor Olin D. Johnston, of South Carolina, a staunch New Deal supporter, just preceded him to the White House and there announced his candidacy for the senate against Senator Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, with apparent presidential sanction, acted to intensify the situation. At the capitol the Johnston announcement evoked much private comment and there had been free predictions that the Georgia Governor would do likewise.

Farley Intervenes.
The morning papers, moreover, carried the announcement of Postmaster General Farley's intervention in the muddled Pennsylvania

THE FAULT OF THE STATES

If the proposal to require federal licenses for all corporations engaged in interstate commerce should be enacted into law, the principal blame for this new invasion of business and of states' rights must be laid upon a few of the states themselves.

The Security Exchange Commission, in a report to congress, recommends enactment of such a law, because of lax state corporation laws prevailing in Delaware, Maryland and a number of other states. These laws not only permit, but encourage widespread abuses on the part of corporation management, the SEC stated.

The states named have for years permitted corporations to maintain nominal headquarters within their boundaries, in order to avoid taxes and regulations imposed by other states. The purpose of easy corporation laws in a state is to secure the revenue accruing from the issuance of licenses.

In Delaware alone, it is commonly known, there are office buildings filled with the nominal headquarters of corporations which do practically no business in that state. Some lawyer, or other agent, nominally represents the corporation, one man frequently performing this service for many.

There are, of course, numbers of corporations of highest integrity which are incorporated under the laws of Delaware, or Maryland, or other "easy" states. It is those which deliberately seek a state with lax laws that will permit practices frowned on in most states, that the commission attacks.

The commission stated that it is such states which permit corporation reorganizations, effected by management on a so-called voluntary basis, but in which the dominating forces in the corporation have virtually a free hand in juggling the assets of their firms.

Such plans, it is stated, "often embody primarily the management's viewpoint and reflect its self-interest, leaving the interests of investors to be protected only by the exigencies of the case and the dictates of the management's conscience."

A federal corporation licensing law would, in many respects, be repulsive to the American concept of individual liberty. It would give government a new form of control over business, would endanger the very existence of many legitimate enterprises. It would, at the same time, take away from the states a right which has been presupposed to be their's throughout the entire history of the nation—the right to regulate and license business enterprise within their own borders.

Yet, unless states which make a mockery of this right can be restrained, it appears probable the federal government will step in, as advocated by the SEC.

THE CAMERA HOBBY

It is generally conceded that the man with a "hobby" squeezes a little more out of life than the one who just doesn't seem to know what to do with himself during off hours. He finds not only recreation, but relaxation in his side line. This means rest and relief from the everyday humdrum. When he returns to the regular job he takes hold with renewed interest and vigor.

The amateur photographer apparently gets the maximum of enjoyment out of his hobby. Certainly no hobbyist goes at it with more enthusiasm. But recording incidents and events of personal interest in the form of permanent pictures would naturally be an interesting pastime. Particularly so at this time of the year when the out-of-doors is so inviting and the Georgia scenery so beautiful.

Nothing creates more amusement than getting into the old album of camera shots taken, say, 25 years ago. The "queer" styles then in vogue, the occasion, the scene, the subjects, bring many a laugh, or perhaps a tear over some long-forgotten incident. And the enjoyment of snapping the family, or the best girl, on an occasion that will all too soon be only a memory, is no less now than years ago.

Everybody should have a hobby, an avocation, something different from the everyday grind, to relieve the tension, the wear and tear, on the human machine. And measured by the enthusiasm of its devotees, no hobby seems more enjoyable than amateur photography.

Ornamental iron fences in Germany are to be converted into death-dealing shrapnel. If this doesn't mow down the opposition, it will be given the gate.

So they drained the New Jersey marshes to build cities. This eliminated the mosquito nuisance and brought on Hague.

RAILROAD WAGES

It cannot be denied the nation's railroads are having a difficult time of it. Car loadings have fallen off in comparative ratio to the recession in general business. The rise and fall of car loadings has always been considered an accurate gauge for measuring the country's prosperity.

The proposed cut of 15 per cent in wages, effective July 1, will not only come as a personal setback to approximately 1,000,000 workers, but will contribute toward deepening the general depression.

It was urgently hoped that rail management would find it possible to hold off such cuts. At least until the present plans for stimulating business had resulted in restoring some of the lost tonnage. An upward turn in the second half of the year, which may reasonably be expected, would bring a decided improvement in the financial position of the carriers. After all, it's tonnage the carriers need more than anything else.

A 15 per cent to 20 per cent increase in car loadings, an expectation not exaggerated, would bring about a decided change in the transportation picture. With loadings on the upgrade and improvement in business all around, such means as necessary could then be employed to cure the ailments of the weaker lines with the least amount of depreciation to owners and loss to employees.

It must not be overlooked that the railroad, despite its present economic difficulties, is still the backbone of the nation's transportation system. This is particularly true as regards bulk and weight. Furthermore, it is one of the country's greatest industries. A general wage cut against this large body of employed is bound to have a detrimental effect on consuming power at a time when nothing should be left undone to increase it.

Many employees will be hard hit. The difference in personal income will have a tightening effect all around. The spending of an earned dollar, it should be noted, has a much more wholesome effect in maintaining an economic balance than spending a relief dollar. It is, therefore, earnestly to be desired that some means be found by the carriers to delay or, better still, prevent altogether, the proposed cut. Prospective improvement in general business should obviate the immediate necessity of it.

There is, however, another measure of relief to which railroads, by general consent, are justly entitled. It is the lifting of a back-breaking tax burden. They are still carrying, in addition to the ever increasing current load, most of the old burdens piled on during the "soak-the-railroads" era. Even holdings made necessary to the legal possession of franchise, although non-revenue producing, are burdened with taxation. No plan for rehabilitation should exclude this item. It stands, according to many economists, as the greatest barrier to prosperity for the nation's railroads.

RADIO USE AND MISUSE

Use of the radio as a political weapon today has extended the frontiers of speech to an extent never before dreamed of. Recent developments in the industry point to a greater effort to control this vital element for the dissemination of knowledge and issues in a manner which may soon culminate in a re-examination of licensing provisions.

The influence to be derived from radio facilities has placed new emphasis on the vocal personality of the candidate which in some instances transcends the issues of the campaign. The air also offers a wider audience of those who are not reached by the printed word, with whom the spoken word necessarily carries an illogically greater weight.

Another potent factor of the radio in politics is the manner in which a speaker may make assertions without a rival being able to answer. Untold harm may result before a reply may be made. To an unscrupulous candidate the advantages accruing are manifest.

The radio has a definite place in the dissemination of knowledge and of issues. Too great a protection, however, cannot be afforded the public by measures which will prevent use of this medium to the detriment of the public weal, indications of which are becoming more evident daily.

With a plane, says a meteorologist, tornadoes could be bombed before damage is done. But cooler heads are against antagonizing a tornado.

That hollow silence would be congress, responding with hosannas and glad cries to the White House proposal that public servants pay the same taxes as people.

BACKFIRE

(From the New Orleans Times-Picayune.)
Reports from South American capitals make it clear that the Nazis blundered when they assumed guardianship of German "minority rights" in all other countries. Then when the Brazilian President Vargas, whom the Germans took to be a Fascist, began to look into seditious activities, he was criticized by the mouthpiece of the Berlin foreign ministry. The Brazilian government replied with a decree expelling from the country the continuance of some German schools and a prohibition against all foreign political agitation.

Argentina likewise has taken protective measures against Nazi propaganda. Some of the German schools for immigrants have been closed and cables report Buenos Aires outraged at the "open insolence" of the Germans in conducting a plebiscite on the Austrian Anschluss in the German colony there. Across the Andes, the Chilean press is described almost as a unit in warning the Nazis that while South American countries have kept an open door to foreigners, foreign ideologies will not be tolerated, nor foreign political agitation condoned.

Any seasoned German diplomat might have warned the reich of the hard and in seeking to spread propaganda menacing the sovereignty of the South American states. Hardly anywhere will nationalities fight more quickly for their independence than in South America. The more Berlin officials fume and threaten the more they are likely to lose in that theater.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

AID FOR BARKLEY WASHINGTON, May 16.—If Alben W. Barkley wins his Kentucky primary contest against the ebullient A. B. "Happy" Chandler, the size of his majority will not only be a test of the popularity of the New Deal—it will be the supreme test of what the federal government can do in the line of rigging local elections.

Barkley was hand-picked by the President for the post of senate majority leader—not so much for his statesmanly exterior as for his engaging habit of telephoning Jimmy when in doubt. The prestige of the White House is involved in the fight between Kentucky's senator and Governor, as it never has been in any previous state primary. And the strategists of the New Deal fully recognize how vital a Barkley victory is to their cause.

The New Deal strategists are prepared to do anything in their power to put Barkley over. It's already been reported that the President will visit Kentucky, to utter his own august indorsement of his worthy and able lieutenant.

All the immense resources of patronage, public money and the pap that public money buys will be lavished on the Barkley campaign. It has been decided to go the whole hog, and credible estimates of the share of taxpayers' funds now being allocated to help Barkley run as high as $52,000,000. The by-products of battle ought to make Kentucky a national beauty spot.

LITTLE MEETING Not long ago the plan of the pap, patronage and projects campaign was laid out at an inconspicuous gathering in the senate majority leader's capitol office. The chief men present were Barkley, Tom Rhea, a Chandler victim in the last Kentucky primary, who is now supporting Chandler's enemy, Selden C. Glenn, the Kentucky collector of internal revenue, who is the behind-the-scenes Barkley manager; and a representative of the Works Progress Administration said to have been George H. Goodman, the Kentucky administrator.

Long ago, the Treasury loudly commanded its collectors to keep out of local politics. The WPA has always insisted that it is non-political. And only a few days ago, WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins wrote a letter to all workers on the WPA rolls, telling them they were to vote as they pleased.

Possibly the Kentucky collector and the WPA representative met in Senator Barkley's office to trade tips on the Kentucky Derby. Possibly the purpose of the meeting was to find a way to prevent WPA workers from being dragged into casting Barkley votes. Possibly a nice game of lotto or penny ante passed the time away.

Cynics will doubt these possibilities, however. They will suspect that the meeting's object was the plan for rigging the federal jobholders to the Barkley cause to choose suitable projects on which a suitable number of millions of dollars might be spent; to decide how WPA workers might be persuaded to vote right. And the suspicions of the cynics will find support in evidence already appearing in Kentucky, where a sudden secrecy shrouded new personnel on WPA rolls, where Barkley precinct workers are said to be enjoying a life of new abundance on federal bounty, where rumors of huge new projects are common talk.

POOR JOE The contrast between the fates of Senator Barkley and Senator Joseph P. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, suggests that it is better to be a President's servant than a President-maker. Joe Guffey's claim to be a President-maker is even better than James A. Farley's. Guffey and his docile Pennsylvanians really started the bandwagon which Jim Farley steered to triumph. Joe Guffey's fortunes will depend on the outcome of the Pennsylvania Democratic primary, which is having its voting climax Tuesday. When the contest began, Guffey sought New Deal help for his candidates. He was thrown a few post offices, and permitted to retain his control of the Pennsylvania WPA. Even so, he was not satisfied.

Some days ago, he marched confidently into the Justice Department, pointed out that there was no vacancy on the federal circuit court in Pennsylvania and demanded that District Court Judge Albert B. Maris be elevated to fill the empty place. He remarked that he wanted the appointment announced before the primary's end, as a testimonial to his own continuing power in Washington.

The Justice Department and the strategists of the New Deal took the problem under advisement. They pondered the thought that, if the Guffey forces should lose the primary, the victorious opposition would harbor resentment. They listened to a delegation of opposition congressmen from Pennsylvania, who requested that the appointment be delayed. And, in the end, they refused the request of the unfortunate Guffey, who had only to lift a finger, in the days of his power, to get anything in the New Deal's gift.

A Lost Tribe

In America, Today.

Here's an interesting story of a strange little group of humans.

In 1891 a band of Apache Indians, under Chief Geronimo, went on the warpath. After terrorizing a portion of Arizona, the band swung into Mexico and began fighting with the natives there.

Ever since then this same group of Indians, and their descendants, have formed a "lost tribe." Official clashes have known in a general way they roam about the Sierra de la Madre in Mexico, but few have ever seen them and those who have, have been unable to approach closely because of the savage, warlike nature of the primitives.

Dr. Helge Instad, Norwegian ethnologist and internationally recognized scientist, has reported, however, to Commissioner of Indian Affairs Collier, that he has recently tried to contact the band, but was unable to reach them, because of the constantly maintained warlike attitude.

Now, the band is composed mostly of women. This is explained by Commissioner Collier:

"Completely out of touch with civilization for 47 years, this band has continued its marauding and fighting until the men have been killed off leaving a pack of degenerate women.

"So primitive is this band that the only time Dr. Instad got within seeing distance, he reported them carrying primitive weapons and clad in animal skins. The few bodies of warriors found after the band's perditional skirmishes were armed with ancient Indian weapons."

Isn't that a situation to exist in modern America of today?

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

A Speech NEW YORK, May 16.—Good morning, Mrs. Dorsey, and did you read the fearless speech that brave, bold congressman Jerry O'Connell, of Montana, didn't deliver in Journal Square in Jersey City? You didn't? My! My! Mrs. Dorsey, that was a regular pannel of a speech.

No, he didn't make the speech, Mrs. Dorsey. He was going to make it and he gave out advance copies of it like, you know, the way they do in congress when they speak three minutes and then print 5,000 words of patriotism, and philosophy and a nation in the Congressional Record.

It seems, Mrs. Dorsey, that there was a crowd hanging around Journal Square so Congressman Jerry O'Connell didn't make the speech. Most statesmen like crowds to hear their speeches, but Jerry is bashful, so when he heard his crowd was there he went back to Washington instead and the papers printed the speech.

"Our forefathers," he was going to say, "were willing to lay down their lives that liberty and democracy might live. They accomplished their virtue by setting up a form of government and a nation which is today the mightiest and greatest under God's heaven."

What-a "That form of govern-ment," he didn't say, "Mrs. Dorsey," he said, "I was preserved because men have been willing to sacrifice even their lives. Tonight I am awfully happy and proud" he was going to continue, Mrs. Dorsey, "to come to Jersey City and raise my voice in protest against the most despicable and disgraceful dictatorship that exists within this nation of ours. Tonight I am happy and proud that I come here to denounce a man whose name is so despicable that it poisons my tongue to utter it."

I dunno, Mrs. Dorsey, maybe it was the night air in Jersey City that caused him to keep a still tongue in his head. It is very bad air, Mrs. Dorsey, and likely to cause throat trouble. Or maybe Jerry didn't want to poison his tongue. They were saying that a lot of hoodlums were waiting to mob him by his house in Journal Square, but that couldn't have been the reason Jerry didn't deliver his speech, because you can see right here where he was going to say, "I am happy and proud that, despite all threats against me, I have come here to speak against a man instead of holding high office, should be confined in the penitentiary at hard labor."

Telling Them That was telling them, Mrs. Dorsey. By Letter say, I mean it was writing them a letter, anyway. "I have been reliably informed," he didn't yell with a defiant glare at the crowd, "that some silly, simple, idiotic people were going to rub me out of town with mud and rubber hoses. That did not scare me, because it was nothing new to me. I come from a city where, as a small boy, I saw men who were fighting for what is now the fundamental law of this land, beaten and killed in body and mind, murdered in cold blood by simple, selfish, greedy men. Yes," he was going to say, "I have seen men make sacrifices that liberty might live, that labor might organize."

"And I say here tonight," he was going to add, Mrs. Dorsey, "to the Kellys and Brophys and all of that ilk who are going to mob me, Mrs. Dorsey, 'like who dance like little puppets when their lord and master pulls the strings, I say to them that you can bring on your two-foot rubber hoses, your thugs and your gunmen, but if I can bring democracy to Jersey City, if I can bring this city of yours back into the American union and destroy an administration so corrupt, so un-American, so undemocratic, the worst that ever blackened the reputation of a decent and self-respecting people, I assure you that I am willing to pay the price."

So you can see, Mrs. Dorsey, Jerry O'Connell was ready for anything. It was a very daring, defiant challenge that he was going to fling right into the very maw—you know, Mrs. Dorsey, of the foul spectre of dictatorship, pulsing around the neck of the sacred escutcheon of liberty and fattening on the very wellspring of Valley Forge.

It was the defiantest speech that you and I never heard in many a long day, Mrs. Dorsey. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

Revival of Reorganization Measure Appears Doomed

Senate, House Leaders Take 'Let-George-Do-It' Attitude.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—Efforts to revive President Roosevelt's beaten government reorganization bill appeared balked to light, temporarily at least, by a "let-George-do-it" attitude on Capitol Hill.

House leaders were suggesting in senate take the first step to open the delicate and troublesome issue. Prominent senators promptly replied the house should take the initiative.

There was little doubt that Mr. Roosevelt would like to see a reorganization bill passed. In fact, the possibility of doing so was a subject of discussion today at a White House conference attended by the President and congressional leaders. However, Representative Rayburn, of Texas, house leader, said the President did not ask specifically that congress take up the legislation before adjournment.

The situation which the President faced was this:

The house, some time ago, split his reorganization program into four bills, two of which were passed and now await action in the senate.

The senate meanwhile wrapped the whole program into one omnibus measure and passed it. The house, after a memorable battle, in the course of which the President issued his famous denial of dictatorship ambitions, voted 204 to 196, to recommit this omnibus bill.

Prominent house members were saying today the senate should go ahead with the two individual bills, and certain administration senators were asserting the house should call up the bill it recommitment and take definite action upon it.

The two bills already passed by the house give Mr. Roosevelt general reorganization powers and would provide him with six administrative assistants. The senate bill included these provisions with some modifications, and the establishment of a one-man civil service administrator and the abolition of the office of comptroller general. Both proposals were opposed bitterly in the house and senate.

SCHOOL FOR POLICE OPENS IN LAGRANGE

Traffic Accidents Termed 'Public Enemy No. 1' by Phil Brewster.

LAGRANGE, Ga., May 16.—Phil Brewster, state public safety commissioner, speaking here today at the opening session of a police school under the direction of Chief of Police J. E. Mathews, named automobile accidents "Public Enemy No. 1" and urged co-operation in the program designed by state officials to make highways safer for traffic.

Study, he said, is as necessary in the police profession as in the legal, medical and other professions, and declared:

"In dealing with criminals we are dealing with smart people. To succeed, it is necessary that we be even smarter than they."

J. W. Vincent, agent in charge of the Atlanta office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, also addressed the group, outlining the course of training which has a twofold aim, elevation of the police profession, and study of crime detection and prevention.

Daily sessions will continue two weeks, and every phase of police work will be introduced for explanation and discussion by men outstanding in their respective fields.

Officers from Hogsansville, West Point, Greenville and Franklin have joined local officers for the course, as have police representing Troup, Heard and Meriwether counties.

MACGREGOR BASE HAS 'HOTTEST' DAY

Birds Seen as Mercury Reaches 34 Degrees Above Zero.

By CLIFFORD J. MACGREGOR, Commander of the MacGregor Arctic Expedition.

REINDEER POINT, Greenland, May 16.—(By Wireless)—This is the first day that the temperature at the expedition's base here has been above freezing since September 24. The maximum temperature for today was 34 degrees above zero.

Yesterday, several flocks of doves were observed along the high mountain cliffs. Sea water has begun to creep around the schooner General A. W. Greely, so, by the looks of things, spring is about to begin in the polar region.

RANGE OF WEATHER TO BE 55-80 TODAY

Partly cloudy weather and slightly higher temperatures are in prospect for the Atlanta area today, the United States Weather Bureau predicted last night.

The temperature range yesterday was from a low of 56 to a high of 74 degrees and today's extremes are expected to be about 55 and 80.

Are You This Long-Sought Brother? Constitution Clipping of 1901 Clue

Little Boy and Girl Were Abandoned at Railroad Station Here in That Year—Woman Thinks Brother Has Copy of News Story, Too.

A Brunswick woman, separated from her brother 37 years ago when both were abandoned in a railroad station, yesterday had uncovered the first clue which would lead to a reunion with her long-lost brother after seeking the aid of The Constitution in learning his identity.

In a yellowed edition of The Constitution for November 27, 1901, the woman, who requested that her name be withheld temporarily, found a report of two orphaned children left in Union depot the day before. Records show, she says, that she was one of those children.

Brother Has Copy?

She said she had been informed her brother has a clipping of the news story but has no way of knowing the identity of the other child mentioned. She said records at an orphan's home here showed the two children mentioned were separated when they were adopted by different persons. Anyone having any knowledge of the circumstances described in the following clipping, from The Constitution for November 27, 1901, can learn the identity of the woman by writing to The Constitution.

"Two little children were taken from the Union depot yesterday afternoon and carried to the Home for the Friendless. The elder of the children is two years of age and the younger is not three-weeks-old.

"A woman arrived at the Union depot yesterday from Coweta county and had with her seven children, five of which were her own. She was accompanied by her father and the family were on their way to Texas. The other two children were orphans and were homeless and friendless.

"The woman placed the two orphans in the care of Mrs. Stein, one of the ladies in the city who looks after such cases.

Parents Dead.

"The woman from Coweta county told Mrs. Stein that the father and mother of the children were both dead.

"We have been trying to take care of the orphans as best we could," the woman stated to Mrs. Stein. "But we are moving to Texas and we have all we can do to look after our own. I have five children and we are quite poor ourselves."

Mrs. Stein, with the police man, had the children taken to the Home for the Friendless by an order from Police Chief Ball.

200,000 Japanese Troops Massed For Smashing Blow at Suchow

SHANGHAI, May 17.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—Two hundred thousand Japanese converged from all sides today on Suchow with one force of the invaders poised for a direct attack on the vital railroad junction.

Japanese troops fighting from the southwest reported they were within 10 miles of Suchow, which is 330 miles northwest of Shanghai, and that it was "only a matter of hours" before they would unlimber their guns on the city itself.

The commander of this force made sure that the public is given to understand well that all the people of Jersey City and New Jersey are just as sinful as some of the people of Jersey City and New Jersey.

At Grafton, W. Va., the other day, they unveiled a bronze plaque in honor of Miss Anna Jarvis, who is said to have originated Mothers' Day 30 years ago in Philadelphia. There should be a lesser plaque on a tree or something for Alabama's J. Thomas Heflin, it seems to us, since Tom was the man who put through congress in 1913 the joint resolution making the second Sunday in May a national holiday "dedicated to the memory of the best mother in the world, your mother." And how about Professor Frank E. Hering, of South Bend, Ind., who, according to the World Almanac, first promoted the Mothers' Day idea way back in 1904?

SENATE APPROVES AERONAUTICS BOARD

Independent Agency to Regulate Aviation Provided by Legislation.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—The senate voted today to set up a new independent federal agency—the Civil Aeronautics Authority—to regulate civil and transport aviation.

The bill now goes to the house where a similar measure, introduced by Representative Lea, Democrat, California, is awaiting action.

Senator McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, author of the measure, said the prepared agency would take all aviation control "from four political departments."

He enumerated the Post Office Department, which controls air mail contracts; the Commerce Department, with its 2,600 employees in the Air Commerce Bureau; the Interstate Commerce Commission, which can adjust rates under air mail contracts; and the Weather Bureau, which collects and supplies meteorological data for flying.

The McCarran measure would create a board of five members, each to be paid $12,000 annually, and give them broad powers to issue certificates of necessity, fix rates and promote air safety. A special air safety board of five members, each paid $7,500 annually, would be created under the authority to deal with all phases of safety in the air.

McCarran said authorized and operating air transport lines would automatically receive certificates to operate after a showing to the new agency of adequate public service.

"The existing air mail contracts are cancelled by this bill," McCarran said. "Contract holders would continue to carry the mail at present rates until the authority looks into these rates."

"Until now the control of transport flying has been under the Post Office Department because of air mail contracts," he said. "This control is no more necessary than for the Post Office Department to control the railroads because they carry substantial mail."

Competitive bidding for air mail contracts is eliminated by the measure, McCarran said, because lines have been bidding for these and taking big losses in hopes the ICC will readjust rates to a profitable basis.

SINGERS MEET.

LA FAYETTE, Ga., May 16.—The annual singing convention of Walker county was held Sunday at the Church of God in West Lafayette, with the president, B. L. Hampton, of Lafayette, presiding. Singers were present from Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee.

QUESTION: What is the quietest and simplest way to remove a finished letter from a machine?

ANSWER: Many operators grab a letter by the top and pull it out, making the platen roller whirl around with a "tearing paper" noise. Eliminate it by pressing the paper release or if more convenient, the ratchet release lever, thus removing pressure and allowing letter to slip out easily... and silently. ## This Morning

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Let me write the songs of a nation and I care not who makes its laws."

Governor Philip La Follette's new political party gives no promise yet of attaining to the sweep of a prairie fire, but the Governor may console himself. Those who write a nation's songs and make its speeches do determine its laws in the more or less long run, and Philip La Follette has made a speech that will live, a song for all time. Short as his new party seems to be on practical proposals, it is long on healthy philosophy. "We have spent so much time squabbling over sharing the wealth," he said, "that we have lost sight of the essential fact that we cannot share wealth unless we have first produced enough wealth to share." The importance of that statement is not in its originality, for it isn't original, but its source. If it had come from one of America's reactionaries it would have meant nothing, and deserved to mean nothing, for it would have been merely a nostalgic gesture toward the productive madness that made a shambles of the New Economic Era after the insane 'twenties.

But it comes from a progressive, a liberal, a man looked upon by many as a radical. From such a man it gets a meaning, a genuine importance. It doesn't justify the sort of increased producing that went on from 1923 to 1929, the producing for which there was no healthy consuming, which had to be consumed by mortgaging the future. But it does spell a new understanding in progressive ranks of something which many proper protestants against the folly that led to the bitter fall of 1929 have been forgetting. It does make the great point that this country's right and necessary steps to develop a greater purchasing power among its masses must not be steps that will prevent a matching increase in things to be purchased.

Editorialist Hugh Stanard, in the Asheville Citizen, has his fine fancy well caught by the suggestion from St. Petersburg, Fla., that southerners send a delegation north to investigate conditions in Frank Hague's town. "Let us raise a giant defense fund," he proposes, "equip our investigators with the best sociological data and send them north to liberate downtrodden Jersey City. Let us enlist Arkansans and the share-cropper country, Scottsboro and south Georgia, bloody Harlan and Gastonia, Tampa and the gas-station-feather country. Let us deputize a Dayton anti-evolutionist and a child-bride from the Cumberland-lands."

Amen and amen! And let's

Do You Really Own That Property?

A man bought a lot in a subdivision for a home, paid all of the purchase price and recorded his deed. His widow learned later that the entire subdivision was encumbered with a mortgage and that the seller had failed to obtain a release of this lot. The mortgage had been foreclosed and the property was lost.

You may not really own the home you have bought and paid for. And you cannot be sure of it unless you have had the title searched by a capable and experienced lawyer. Under a plan worked out by the Real Estate Section of the Atlanta Bar Association, Atlanta lawyers now furnish, along with title examination, Title Insurance in a strong national title insurance company.

If you have a "family" lawyer, who reviews your affairs at regular intervals, you can feel confident of matters like this. When your status changes, he tells you how it may affect your holdings, your will, your legal rights. When new laws change your situation, he tells you about them, and what to do.

But if you only go to a lawyer when you have a specific legal problem—you are not getting the full benefit of his services. Choose a good lawyer and make him your counselor in all your dealings. It will pay you, and pay you well.

THIS IS THE THIRD IN A SERIES OF MESSAGES SPONSORED BY THE ATLANTA BAR ASSOCIATION

An organization composed of lawyers who agree to abide by legal ethics and to submit themselves to the discipline of the bar.

ONE SHOE OFF

By Joseph McCord.

INSTALLMENT I.

Young Mr. Clayton Odell muttered to himself as he shifted his six-foot length on the floor boards of his canoe. There was uneasy caution in the procedure, for the bottom of the craft was heated to a high degree by the rays of a July sun. And Mr. Odell's costume at the moment consisted of trunks and a pair of blue-tinted glasses over his tightly closed eyes. Suddenly, his mumbled remarks rose to a startled cry.

"Hey! What the devil...!"

He jerked himself up to a sitting position, leaning involuntarily to starboard in response to an alarming tilt of the canoe. Almost at once he discovered the cause. A pair of hands was holding tightly to the port sponson and, even as the crew snatched off its spectacles for a clearer view of the situation, a bathing cup of brilliant yellow rubber bobbed into view. Then the two wide-open gray eyes, filled with consternation.

"Oh, I'm sorry!" a feminine voice panted. The eyes and cap dropped from view as suddenly as they had emerged, but the voice continued. It was muffled, and plainly apologetic. "May I hang on here just a minute, please? I won't peek."

Odell grinned and picked up a folded jersey he had been using for a pillow. He wiggled his arms into his striped embrace and ran the finger of one hand through his thick black hair before he spoke.

"The amenities are served," was his brief announcement, "come on up."

The cap and eyes promptly reappeared. With them was a small mouth, its pink lips pursed tightly. And a firm little chin that supported itself on the canoe sponson, a chin from which water trickled.

"That sounds like we were going to eat," the girl suggested with some difficulty.

"Maybe you'd better come aboard and get your breath," Odell countered. "Do you know how to climb into one of these things?"

"Sure," his caller obliged with a trace of scorn. "I believe I will, thanks."

Curiously, and not entirely without apprehension, the man watched a slim leg flash into sight, saw a shapely heel secure a purchase on the rail. Swiftly, if not too gracefully, a slender body in a yellow swimming suit appeared, heaved itself aboard with a quick roll. An instant later, its owner was sitting cross-legged in the bottom of the canoe, breathing heavily, but smiling.

"Very well done," her host complimented, wiping his face with the back of his hand. "Seing we're unsinkable," he amended.

"Oh... did I splash you much? Were you afraid I'd upset you?"

"No, not at all. But it's better to climb in at the bow or stern."

The girl unfastened the chin strap of her headgear, making a wry face as she removed it. She shook back her abundant chestnut hair and took a deep breath.

"Well! That's better."

The cap interlude gave Odell an opportunity for a swift appraisal of the newcomer. It began with her small feet, white and unblemished as a child's. Good-looking legs. A boyish body, almost without contours. A few pounds, and in the proper places, would improve her figure greatly he decided. She wasn't pretty, exactly. That funny little mouth gave her an innocent, wistful appearance which the large gray eyes enhanced. He found himself thinking suddenly that her last careless exclamation was oddly at variance with her face.

"Were you trying to swim across the lake?" he wanted to know.

"Gracious, no! I was with some of the girls from the office this afternoon. But all they do is to wade or squal or lie in the sand. I'm trying to improve my distance. I was thinking about something else and, first thing I knew, I was tired... couldn't make up my mind whether to cut across to the Point or go back. Then I noticed your canoe. It looked like it was empty."

"Isn't this water rather deep to be undressed in?"

"Maybe. I guess I'm like that. I can make it back all right, after I get my breath."

"You'd better take your time. Or let me set you ashore. No hurry, either way."

You must have been taking a sun bath," was her rejoinder.

"Were you?"

"Sort of. Something got me down last spring. The doctor said the sun had some shot I needed... infra-violet or ultra-red rays. Whatever they are, they must be in magnificent form right now. I was just going to turn over and fry the other side when you happened in."

"Don't mind me. I won't stay but a minute."

"But I will. After all, a host has his duties. I'd rather talk. Care for a cigaret?"

"No thank you."

Odell rolled over and made a long reach into his end of the canoe. When he resumed his original position he had a cigaret between his lips and a book of matches in one hand. The girl watched him with an air of pensiveness that was almost a leisurely thread of smoke into the quiet air, watching it through half-closed eyes.

"You said you were going to talk," she reminded.

"Oh, I am. Merely doing a little deducing first. Want to hear about it?"

"Yes."

"This is Saturday afternoon. You said something about girls from the office. It's pretty deep, but I infer that you work in an office and that you live over in Norwood. How'm I doing?"

An affirmative nod encouraged him.

"I'm usually pretty good. But there's one thing that evades me. I'm trying to think of your name. And it just won't come. I keep getting Alice, but it doesn't seem quite right. It isn't Alice, is it?"

"Very nearly. You have three letters right. It's Hilary."

"Of course! That's what I was trying for."

"Maybe I can save you some trouble with my last name," Hilary suggested unsmilingly. "There's a 'y' in it... L-a-y-n-e."

"Hilary Layne..." Odell repeated musingly. "I like that a lot. I don't know why, but it seems to suit you. Did anybody ever tell you so?"

"Not that I remember of."

"Then I'm glad I was the first. And my name is Odell. Clayton McMoran Odell. I hope you like some of it. There's a lot to choose from."

"It sounds very nice. Are you Irish?"

"Not for some time, anyway. Why? From the way I go on?"

"Oh, no. But it has an Irish sound. And you do have black hair and blue eyes. I've read or heard somewhere that combination is Irish."

"I believe I have, too. Now that you mention it. Maybe we did have an apostrophe once. I'm not very familiar with the family's ancient history... its present struggles keep me busy."

He smiled engagingly with the last words. Hilary liked the whimsical light in his eyes. And he did have a funny way of saying things. She found herself hoping that he would tell her who he was and where he came from. His next words were rather encouraging.

"Well, at least, we know who we are, now. Tell me, Hilary Layne, do you like Norwood?"

"I suppose I do. I've never lived any other place."

"I've come to the conclusion that it's one of the most attractive places I've ever seen. This is beautiful sheet of water. And the hills around the shore. It's like a picture. I'd never get tired looking at it." His eyes wandered over the shimmering expanse of lake as he said it.

"I don't remember ever seeing you around Norwood," Hilary experimented. "I thought I knew almost everybody in town... I might," she amended. She was thinking to herself, that if she had missed a glimpse of this good-looking stranger, she would have heard of his presence. The office would have buzzed the news.

"Oh, I haven't been staying in Norwood," Odell explained. "I'm visiting near by. Odd, but I've fallen in love with the country. I believe I would like to say... have a job, you know. Do you think that water, or, is a picture. Your advice should be good. After what you've just told me. Hilary slowly shook her head.

"You're silly."

"Why?"

"Because you'd almost have to work for Norwood. The lake isn't much of anything else here."

"So I've noticed. From the feeling way you speak, I've an idea that you're employed there."

"Oh, I am."

"What's the matter with the place... aside from looking trifle shabby?"

"They don't pay anything. They don't have to. But you take unless you want to leave home. And jobs aren't plentiful. Do you know anything about stockings?"

"I'll admit to having an eye for them when they're in action. But I'm not sure about the 'u' Mr. Odell. And he's a little sort of shriveled up and grouchy. Odell's merry laugh rang across the water."

STRANGE ISLANDS OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

1-Papua. North of Australia is a great island with an area of 308,000 square miles. It is known as Papua, also as New Guinea. Both names are correct.

Holland owns the western half of Papua, but the eastern half is in the British Empire, being under direct control of Australia. That is the part we shall have most to say about.

The Papuans around coast cities and villages have learned some of the white men's ways, but still cling to many old customs. In the interior, far from the coast, are Papuans who seldom, if ever, have seen a white man.

One old custom is for youths and young men in a village to live in one or more "bachelor houses." Boys are allowed to enter such a house when from 12 to 14 years of age, and may stay until they are married, perhaps at the age of 18 or 20. No woman is allowed to come near a bachelor's house even to clean it up.

Firesticks were applied to huts, and they were ablaze in time. We were some distance away but could hear the yells of the takers and the cries of the lagers who were trying to see what they could from their huts and gardens. Clouds of thick smoke rolled up from the village. A little distance away women, children and old men. They were driving pigs bet them.

"While the last line of huts going up in smoke, the defence kept up the fight, trying to get their families time to get away. Then they turned and fled."

The attackers rounded up the pigs they could find in the luge, also whatever else they of value. They then marched to their own village, singing songs of victory.

Papuan warriors usually carry shields, spears, and stone bat axes. Sometimes they use bow arrows.

Father Finds 4 of Family in Mortuary

Overstreet of Knoxville Planned Happy Reunion; Grandmother Still Missing.

By JACK SPALDING, III.
A birthday reunion carefully planned months ago by members of Lewis Overstreet's family was held last night in an Atlanta funeral parlor.

Mrs. Overstreet and her three children, Jacqueline, 11, and the year-old twins, Jimmy and Jean, were there, victims of the Terminal hotel fire. They were en route from their old home in Winter Haven, Fla., to join their father in Knoxville after a separation of about six months, when they decided to break their trip in Atlanta. They registered at the Terminal hotel.

When firemen crashed into the overstreet's room they found the other seated in a chair, her body slumped forward. One of the girls was kneeling at the bedside with her hands clasped, as if in prayer. Bodies of the other two children were found stretched across the bed.

Overstreet, a Knoxville telephone company employee, whose birthday it was, was driven hurriedly by his brother when they learned of the tragedy. Grandmother Missing.

One member of the family group was missing. The body of Mrs. Anna Bacon, Mrs. Overstreet's mother, had not been recovered in the hotel wreckage last night. The family was separated last night when Overstreet left his Florida home to work in Knoxville. Conditions were not too certain, so he kept his family in Florida for a winter, "so the children's education would not be interfered with."

Recently he was made night manager of a telegraph company's office in Knoxville. He rented an apartment "for a few months, in case my wife doesn't like it," and left for his family.

All Set for Reunion.
Overstreet had planned to take his family to a hotel in Knoxville last night, as he knew they would be too tired after their long trip to move into their apartment. Meanwhile, their household had begun to arrive from Florida. The furnishings were moved into the new apartment. All ready for the family's reunion.

The Overstreets and Mrs. Bacon, Winter Haven for Knoxville, stopped in Atlanta Sunday night. Mrs. Overstreet, the former Josephine Bacon, of Atlanta, many old friends she wanted to see. And with a mother's pride, she wanted her friends to see her children. They registered at the Terminal hotel.

The father spent last night with his wife and children. Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Stuckey, at 1441 Lanier st., N. E. He was described as articulate, "frozen with grief." Friends of the family said that funeral services will be held here in the body of the grandmother covered.

the men who saved themselves were not learned.

One of the bodies removed last night was taken to West Side Funeral Home, and the other was taken to the establishment of A. C. Hemperley & Sons.

The bodies were found within a few feet of each other, in a pile of debris between the first floor and where the second floor formerly stood. Wrecking cars were used to pull heavy timbers out of the building, to facilitate searching.

In some instances, twisted metal pipes and burned plumbing were cut with acetylene torches.

Heat from the fire expanded still-standing walls of the building to a dangerous degree. One fireman said the Spring street wall, near Mitchell street, bulged forward at least eight feet out of line.

Firemen pointed out that if the Spring street wall collapsed, it would fall forward, probably as far as the Spencer monument in the Terminal station plaza, directly opposite the hotel, a distance of at least 100 feet.

The three floodlights used to illuminate the wrecked interior were strategically placed. One was placed on the marquee above the Spring street door. Another stood on a pole at the intersection of Spring and Mitchell streets, and the third was placed on a platform in the middle of Spring street, toward the rear of the building.

Police estimated that since dawn yesterday, when news of the fire spread, there were at least 5,000 to 10,000 persons jammed behind police lines around the building all day. Constantly moving, with others coming in to take their places, it was estimated that at least 40,000 persons visited the scene at one time or another during the day or night.

Ambulances remained lined up in the plaza of Terminal station and on Spring and Mitchell streets, waiting for recovery of other bodies.

The hotel, due to its location across from the railroad station, was "home" to many railroad men. Many of them recalled days and nights they had spent in the place as they looked at the bulk where death had struck quickly and viciously.

The building had been the first

Fire EXTINGUISHED WITHIN 12 HOURS

The Terminal hotel fire burned slightly less than 12 hours.

The first alarm was sounded at 3:15 o'clock yesterday morning, and the fire was declared officially out at 3:05 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Starts in Basement.

The blaze broke out in the basement of the building when most of the guests were asleep. Flames and smoke shot upward, and in a moment the whole building, from top to bottom, was ablaze.

When first fire companies arrived, persons in the front part of the building called frantically for help. Heat and smoke hampered firemen in getting rescue work started. Cries of "Save me!" "Help!" filled the air above the noise and confusion of sirens and clanging fire bells.

As firemen raised ladders to rescue those on upper floors, dense smoke at times hid them from view. In a few moments the cries and screams stopped as if by some fearful signal. Those trapped had either been suffocated or burned.

Inside, the fire raged.

Smoke Chokes Firemen.

Alarms were sounded in rapid succession. Firemen arrived to find the building a mass of flames and the roof a lighted torch.

The firemen worked doggedly, choking in thick smoke. A number of persons were rescued from the fourth floor.

Flames played over fire escapes in the rear and on the Mitchell street side, making them virtually useless.

The hotel register was lost in the blaze, adding to the difficulties of checking identities and those missing.

The fallen debris battered many bodies. Friends and relatives, many weeping, stood about as bodies were taken out. One young woman appealed tearfully to Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby for aid in locating a relative.

"Where was he?" the chief asked.

"In the third room from the corner," she answered.

The chief shook his head sadly. "Not a chance," he replied.

The fire was the third in the past 30 years on the site. The block burned in 1908, and was rebuilt in 1908. The hotel was also rebuilt at that time. Several years later, a basement fire damaged the structure.

Firemen Amazed as Trapped Victim Taken Alive From Fire-Swept Room.

Doctors at Grady hospital and city firemen marveled yesterday that one woman lived through the holocaust of the Terminal hotel fire.

She is Mrs. W. Guy Coleman, 42, widow of a former city alderman, who died about a year ago, and a well-known resident.

Mrs. Coleman was trapped in her room on the second floor of the structure. As flames mounted through the building turning beds into red-hot griddles and the hotel literally into an oven, firemen grimly said:

"No one can live in that."

HEAD BURNED BARE, WIDOW STILL LIVES

Firemen Amazed as Trapped Victim Taken Alive From Fire-Swept Room.

Doctors at Grady hospital and city firemen marveled yesterday that one woman lived through the holocaust of the Terminal hotel fire.

She is Mrs. W. Guy Coleman, 42, widow of a former city alderman, who died about a year ago, and a well-known resident.

Mrs. Coleman was trapped in her room on the second floor of the structure. As flames mounted through the building turning beds into red-hot griddles and the hotel literally into an oven, firemen grimly said:

"No one can live in that."

But when the blaze was brought under control and work of removing persons trapped within the building began, firemen came to Mrs. Coleman's room. The concentrated heat from the furiously burning fire made it "impossible to touch anything."

They came upon Mrs. Coleman. Her hair had been burned completely from her head and she had been badly burned about the body.

At first glance, firemen could not tell whether the body was that of a man or a woman.

Yet Mrs. Coleman still breathed when they removed her from the ruins. She was taken to Grady hospital. She was unconscious, and was still unconscious last night.

Doctors, too, spoke of a "miracle" in the fact that life remained in Mrs. Coleman's body. Besides suffering from burns, Mrs. Coleman inhaled a great deal of smoke.

It was said there were at least 65 persons in the hotel when the fire broke out at 3:15 o'clock.

At least six persons, frantic as flames reached them, leaped from upper-floor windows. Firemen carried several persons to safety down fire ladders and by using ropes. The blaze for a time threatened the adjoining Sylvan hotel, where scores of persons were forced to flee.

6 At Grady.

Four men and two women were in serious condition at Grady hospital. The women and one of the men were not expected to live.

One of the women was Mrs. W. Guy Coleman, 42, widow of a former city alderman, who died about a year ago. Mrs. Coleman was taken from the second floor of the burned hotel after the fire was brought under control. She was burned horribly, but still was breathing.

Her mother, Mrs. Annie Reynolds, who lives at a downtown hotel, went to Grady hospital shortly after learning of the fire. When her daughter was wheeled into the emergency ward on an ambulance stretcher, Mrs. Reynolds cried:

"Is that my baby? Oh, my poor baby!"

Wall, Roof Collapse.

The roof and the north wall, on the Spring street side, collapsed. The accumulation of this fallen debris added to the difficulty of rescue workers and firemen who sought additional bodies.

Only the brick walls of the hotel were left standing. The interior was a complete mass of charred and jumbled ruins.

Identification of the dead was extremely difficult, due to the condition of the bodies. Many of those trapped in the hotel were clad either in underclothing or nightclothing. They were literally roasted alive.

Captain B. W. Seabrook, of the police identification bureau, said that, if necessary, he would send fingerprints of some of the victims to Washington, in an effort to identify the bodies through the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

A general alarm had been sounded, and every piece of fire-fighting equipment in the city, with two exceptions, and apparatus from Buckhead, arrived at the scene. Dozens of ambulances were on the job.

SHELL OF HOTEL PERILS WORKERS

corner of the building where five floors had collapsed to the basement—they could expect nothing but lifeless, torn bodies to greet their eyes—if they found anything at all, other than sudden death for themselves if the walls should buckle and collapse.

But still they worked on and on. The party started removing the debris about noon and darkness failed to call a halt to their activity.

Giant searchlights were brought in, and powerful beams were trained upon the spot where the workmen continued to struggle.

It was a slow and tedious job at best. Tons and tons of heavy timbers had fallen into the basement, and a tractor and cables were necessary to pull the jammed planks from the mass of wreckage.

Bodies Mangled.

Bath tubs, beds, mattresses, doors, bits of clothing and hundreds of timbers were drawn from the tomb before any bodies were found late last night. Those that were discovered were mangled and charred almost beyond description.

After the workmen had removed the heaviest timbers with the tractor and a hoist furnished by the county, they then had to work with their hands. Occasionally they would find a wallet, notebook, or some other article which would reveal a clue to persons trapped in the burning building.

In the midst of the search, Fireman Fred Cason, of the aerial crew at Station No. 1, emerged from the debris with his forehead bleeding profusely. He had been hit by a piece of flying timber. He was taken to Grady hospital for treatment.

Thousands Watch.

Thousands of Atlantans who had read about such disasters in other parts of the country, but who had never had one unfold before their eyes kept a constant vigil as the wreckage was drawn from the basement. Police succeeded in keeping them behind the fire lines but occasionally they would surge forward in an effort to get a better view of what was taking place.

Friends and relatives of persons who were believed to be buried beneath the mass of debris had anxiety written on their faces as they waited minute after minute and hour after hour. Young Boland McLaughlin, whose father, W. S. McLaughlin, a baggage master on the Southern Railroad, was among the missing, watched as the work progressed.

P. E. Hooten, who was in the group of onlookers, had much to be thankful for. He jumped from a second story window down to the marquis in front of the hotel and suffered only a injured hip, but he was able to walk around the building that almost proved to be his tomb.

Waits in Room.

"When I woke up my room was full of smoke," he said. "I ran into the bathroom and closed the door and waited until the flames had almost burned through the door. Then I got out on the window sill and the firemen played water on me until I could jump."

J. B. Kinney, of Cornelia, who held the lease on the building, was thankful he had been called home for the week-end.

"Ordinarily I would have been here at the hotel during the week-end, but it happened that I had to go home Saturday. I stay here quite frequently on week-ends and it must have been an act of Providence that sent me away this time."

Fire Chief O. J. Parker said it would probably be sometime today before the entire wreckage is cleaned out. The chief himself remained on the job despite the fact he had been up since the first alarm was sounded early yesterday morning.

Many of the men were almost exhausted yesterday afternoon as they were ordered to go home and rest and new workmen were called in to take their places.

Several faint.

Several persons in the crowd which jammed the plaza in front of the Terminal station fainted.

Mayor Hartsfield was among the group who remained throughout the greater part of the day. John T. Marler, chairman of the board of firemasters, who was present, praised the fire department for keeping the blaze within the one building.

Among the articles dug from the wreckage yesterday was a belt and wallet containing $42.51 belonging to R. B. Collier, w. was among the few to escape from the inferno. Chief Parker had the money returned to its owner.

Approximately 10 county policemen volunteered their services in the rescue work last night.

ANNEX TO BE DEDICATED.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., May 16.—A special dedicatory service will be held Sunday in the First Methodist church here marking completion of its annex, which was begun eight years ago during the pastorate of the late Rev. Marvin Williams. The building was erected on the "pay-as-you-go" plan.

GRAPHIC SCENES TELL STORY OF HOTEL FIRE HORROR

TOP LEFT—Scenes of Terminal hotel blaze showing floors as they crashed in on the north side of the structure. It is here that firemen and workmen are now removing debris, believing that many more bodies will be found here. The elevator cage is in the subbasement underneath all this pile of debris.

TOP RIGHT—This picture was taken at the height of the fire, by The Constitution photographer at 3:20 a. m. yesterday. The flames had been under way less than 30 minutes when this photograph was taken. It will be observed that the flames are raging from the first floor all the way to the top, the fifth floor.

Just one of the many victims being removed from the inferno. All of the dead were lowered by nets in the hands of firemen. They were immediately placed in ambulances and rushed to various funeral homes. This scene was repeated time and time again. The bodies were shrouded in sheets after reaching the ground. This victim was removed from the fifth, the top floor of the building.

ABOVE—Chief Parker directing his men battle the flames and in rescue of the living and removal of the dead.

AT LEFT—Firemen are seen taking body of victim around ledge and cornice on the corner of the structure at Spring and Mitchell streets. This body was found sprawled on the window ledge at the right end of a painter's scaffolding which was left by the painters who worked at painting the fifth-story window frames Saturday. This body was the first sighted by the hundreds who gathered to watch the fire. Cries of "Look, there's a man up there" came from hundreds of throats.

ABOVE—This graphically tells why guests and employees could not escape via elevator, stairway and the doorway leading into the street. It was here that the flames first rushed into the hotel from the basement and on up through the elevator shaft and stairway to the floors above. They drove the elevator operator and the night clerk, also the telephone operator, into the street within a few minutes after striking this section of the hotel. This cut short any attempts at warning those asleep on the floors above.

FIRETRAPS' PROBE AND STRICTER LAW ON BUILDING SOUGHT

Mayor and Councilmen Confer on Terminal Hotel Holocaust.

Investigation of fire hazards throughout the city will be demanded in city council Wednesday afternoon by Councilmen John A. White and Frank Beck as the result of the Terminal hotel tragedy yesterday morning.

As officials awaited the determination of exact cause of the hotel holocaust, councilmen conferred with Mayor Hartsfield yesterday afternoon and agreed stricter building regulations must be written into the city's building code.

Several councilmen suggested condemnation proceedings should be taken against buildings which are known to be firetraps. Mayor Hartsfield, who spent most of yesterday at the scene of the fire, declared that in the future buildings which house large numbers of persons should be required to be fireproofed. He agreed with councilmen that hotels should maintain nightwatchmen to make hourly inspections of the premises.

Two Resolutions. Councilmen White and Beck prepared resolutions yesterday providing for investigation of fire hazards. Beck had another filing for a revision of the city building code. Council was scheduled to act on them yesterday afternoon but its meeting was postponed until 2 o'clock tomorrow morning because a quorum of the permanent board was not present.

White will propose that Fire Chief O. J. Parker and City Building Inspector C. J. Bowen make a detailed report to council before the 15 on the dangerous conditions of any large buildings in the city.

Beck's resolution asks for a committee to be appointed to thoroughly investigate hazardous conditions and report to council. Sidney B. Jewett, chairman of the fire prevention committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, based on citizens and officials of city government alike to take strong and fearless action in plugging building regulations which would prevent a repetition of the hotel disaster.

Second Major Tragedy. Jewett called attention to the fact that the fire Monday was the second major tragedy of its kind in the past 18 months. He referred to the Cable Piano Company building fire.

He urged the city require automatic fire alarms in all hotels, and tested sprinkler systems as a part of the necessary equipment in all places where many persons are gathered.

The Jaycee chairman also demanded council should provide new equipment. Council has taken action on Chief Parker's plea for $38,000 for another 100-foot ladder and two new pumps.

It is time for the city to take action about fire hazards, Councilman White asserted yesterday. "There are many buildings which we know to be dangerous. Council should take decisive steps. It is given a list of such buildings by the fire chief and the building inspector."

Hartsfield said he would wait the cause of the Terminal fire was determined before would comment on it.

OFFICIALS QUIZ HOPKINS' FAMILY

Her, Sister of Atlanta Capitalist Summoned.

ATLANTA, Fla., May 16.—(AP)—Internal Revenue Bureau officials summoned a brother and sister of the late Lindsey Hopkins Sr., capitalist of Atlanta and Miami, for hours today in connection with charges that he filed fraudulent income tax returns to escape $1,000,000 due the government.

Those questioned were Walter Hopkins, of Miami, and Mrs. Alice Milner Grubb, of Coral Gables. Their testimony remained confidential.

James J. Brown, internal bureau intelligence agent, asked that Judge Robert T. Ervin to summon the couple after he said had failed to induce Mrs. Grubb to appear.

Mad Death Raced Through Here Clad in a Cloak of Red Flames

Flaming Death roared through here. This picture was taken from the edge of the part of the fifth story of the Terminal hotel which did not collapse when fire swept the building early yesterday morning. This is where the roof fell, carrying the floors underneath with it, in a mighty crash to the basement. A piece of bed hangs beside a charred door frame. Twisted metal, charred timbers and other wreckage give mute evidence of the fury of the tragic blaze which took 26 lives.

FINAL RITES TODAY FOR FIRE VICTIM

M. D. Wicker To Be Buried in West View.

Funeral services for Marcus D. Wicker, 53, who died yesterday morning in the Terminal hotel fire, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of J. Austin Dillon. The Rev. W. H. Elliott will officiate and burial will be in West View cemetery.

Wicker's body was recovered from the hotel wreckage about 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning. He was said to be a salesman and part-time clerk at the hotel.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. R. W. Cage, and a granddaughter, Barbara Ann Cage, of 1161 Virginia avenue, N. E.

Tragedy and Luck Are Revealed In Sidelights of Hotel Blaze

The Terminal Liquor Store, which was destroyed when fire swept the Terminal hotel—held city license number 13. Bottles of liquor and cordials exploded with the noise of machine-gun fire during the height of the blaze.

Sparks carried on a stiff wind ignited savings of four Broad street stores a block away from the fire, but were quickly extinguished.

It was a sleepless night for residents of other small hotels in the neighborhood of the Terminal hotel. Guests were awakened by fire engines, dressed hurriedly and went to watch the fire.

Witnessing the holocaust in which 24 persons were killed proved too much for the nerves of most. Lobbies were filled with persons. None felt like going back to bed.

A man who told Patrolman Cuba L. Heath he had gone broke in a friendly poker game on the fourth floor of the hotel thanked his "bad luck" yesterday.

The man said he left the game and went to a near-by restaurant just a few minutes before flames enveloped the building.

Minutes meant life for Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Gulley, who fled down a fire escape from their room on the fourth floor. Gulley, who is 48 and a special agent for the Department of Internal Revenue, said:

"Two minutes more, and we would never have made it. I don't see how any of the others could have gotten out alive."

Power company crews cut trolley wires on Mitchell street and rerouted cars of the Walker-West View, West Hunter Street, Magnolia Street and West Fair Street lines.

Two hotel guests eating an early morning meal in Hartsfield's restaurant, adjoining the hotel lobby, ran out carrying their plates in their hands.

Atlanta chapter of the American Red Cross announced through Dr. Frank K. Boland, chairman, it "stands ready to serve."

Dr. Boland said the organization will do all in its power to aid friends and relatives find missing loved ones.

Praise for the courage and efficiency of Atlanta fire fighters was voiced by Mrs. Robert E. Collier, who was rescued from a second-floor ledge of the Terminal hotel.

"I have nothing but the highest praise for them,"

HOTEL 'TOTAL LOSS,' FIXED AT $105,000

Only Partial Insurance Carried by Building's Owner, Attorney Reveals.

The fire at the Terminal hotel caused a "total loss" of the property, assessed for tax purposes at $105,000, John A. Hynds, attorney for the owner, said last night.

Hynds said the building was only partially insured, and the remaining walls will "probably have to come down." He added that no plans for the future of the property can be made until insurance is adjusted.

The building is owned by Mrs. Nellie Inman Cooper, of 1041 West Peachtree street, widow of Joseph W. Cooper, and daughter of the late Samuel M. Inman, Atlanta capitalist.

The property, fronting 114 feet on Spring street and 50 feet on Mitchell street, is part of the Inman estate, and has been held by members of the family for 34 years.

Inman bought the property in 1904, and built the hotel in 1906. In May, 1908, the structure burned, with other properties in the neighborhood, and was rebuilt by Inman that same year.

He owned the property until his death in 1915, when it was willed to Mrs. Cooper.

J. B. Kinney, of Gainesville, Ga., present lessee, acquired the lease January 1, 1937, for an annual rental reported as $10,800 for a four-year period ending December 31, 1940.

D. T. Cannon, present lessee of the Henry Grady hotel, is a former lessee of the property.

PEACHTREE JEWELER LOSES $2,500 IN GEMS

City Detectives J. J. Chester and W. M. Holland last night were seeking a thief who took approximately $2,500 worth of jewelry, scrap gold and platinum from the Myron E. Freeman Company, jewelers, at 103 Peachtree street, N. E.

The theft occurred last Thursday, store officials told police, and the loot was taken from the store-room. However, no signs of forced entry were found, it was reported.

Rivers Is Shocked At Hotel Tragedy

Governor Rivers, in Washington yesterday, was deeply shocked when he learned of the Terminal hotel fire. He said: "It was a great shock for me to learn of the tragedy in Atlanta last night. It grieved me deeply. On the part of officials, residents, and ex-Georgians in Washington, and on the part of the state of Georgia and myself I wish to extend sincere sympathies to the friends and relatives of the victims."

WOUNDED CONVICT DIES AT TATNALL

Sixth Man in Saturday Escape Attempt Sought in South Georgia Swamp.

REIDSVILLE, Ga., May 16.—(AP)—Wounded Saturday in a swamp battle with prison guards, Julius Young, 22-year-old Glynn county convict, died at the Tattall State prison about midnight.

Guards continued to watch today for a companion, Garnett McIntyre, of Elbert county, only one of six who broke for freedom who had not been returned to his cell.

They expressed a belief McIntyre was wounded in the fighting, saying they were certain he had been struck by one or more bullets. They said it "was not at all improbable" he had died in the swamp.

Young was described at Brunswick as the "black-face bandit" who used shoe polish to disguise himself during a theater holdup. He was shot and wounded before an escape attempt, when Sheriff George W. Owens fired upon him. At that time the sheriff quoted Young as saying "No jail in the country will hold me."

Prison officials said he was in the break from a prison farm square, in which a guard was beaten and an automobile taken from the wife of another guard and led the gunfight hours later.

Saturday it was believed McIntyre was surrounded and his capture near. Later it was decided he had either wandered deeper into the swamp or had died.

GUEST DESCRIBES RESCUE FROM FIRE

Blood-Curdling Screams, the 'Roaring Wind' Make Ghastly Memory.

"I'll never forget their screams. There they were, trapped in their rooms, beyond all hope of help. It was just a case of them not being able to get out and firemen not being able to get to them. It was horrible."

With these words, Beverly L. Vernon, 58, a Southern railway employee, who was rescued by firemen from the fifth floor of the Terminal hotel, recounted the "most horrible experience I've ever had in my life."

"The whole thing seems now like an insane nightmare," Vernon said yesterday.

"I was asleep. Something that sounded like a roaring wind awakened me. I smelled smoke. I grabbed my pocketbook and started out of my room. When I reached the hall, I was almost knocked down by a sudden, furious rush of heat and fumes. It was like a slap from a devil."

"I ran back to my room. I shoved hard to push the door to. I got it closed. I felt myself getting weak from the smoke, the panic and the exertion. There was only one other way out—the window."

"I didn't open it. I broke it. I started yelling at the top of my lungs. So were the others. My room was on the outside, and I got the attention of some firemen. They raised a ladder."

"It seemed like years, waiting up there. The whole place was like a furnace. On all sides of me I heard screams for help. Everything was jumbled up. I managed to climb down the ladder. But I made it. The smoke had knocked me out, and they took me to the hospital. That ghastly memory will live with me always."

ATLANTANS ASKED TO DONATE $2,935 FOR CHINESE RELIEF

Red Cross Seeks To Raise
$1,000,000 For War-
Torn Areas.

Atlantans yesterday were asked by the Red Cross to contribute a minimum of $2,935 in a nationwide campaign to raise $1,000,000 for refugee relief in China's war-torn areas.

The Atlanta quota was set in a letter received at Red Cross headquarters here from Norman H. Davis, chairman of the national executive committee of the organization.

Deadline for obtaining the million dollars, originally requested last January by President Roosevelt in a public appeal, was set for June 15 in a resolution adopted unanimously by the Red Cross National Convention.

Starving to Death.
"Reports from American consular officials and businessmen in China detail conditions unbelievable to most Americans," Davis said. "Even in Shanghai, where relief work has been fairly efficiently organized, trucks make morning rounds collecting refugees who have died on the streets during the night from exposure or starvation."

Since the commencement of hostilities in the far east the American Red Cross has received $170,000 for transmission to China and has appropriated $200,000 from its national treasury in addition for this purpose, it was pointed out.

Pitiful Victims.
"The men, women and children of a friendly people who are the pitiful victims of this tragedy are no more responsible for their plight than if they were suffering from a great cataclysm of nature," Davis wrote. "Let us out of our comparative abundance give to them in their deep distress this measure of hope and encouragement."

The national convention of the American Red Cross adopted resolutions requesting the public to contribute to the Chinese relief fund and pledged its delegates to take steps to obtain additional contributions to the national fund which already totals $170,000.

CHICAGO IS WITHOUT FUNDS FOR RELIEF

91,000 Persons To Get War-Time-Like Rations, Beginning Tomorrow.

CHICAGO, May 16. (UP)—Approximately 91,000 persons in the nation's second largest city will go on war-time-like rations Wednesday because relief funds are exhausted.

In the offices of the Illinois Relief Commission, clerks were writing their last orders. Last month they wrote orders for 260,000 persons, approximately one out of every 14 in Chicago.

This month they will stop when they reach the letters "Noo" in the alphabetical list and 34,000 families will be deprived of the funds on which they depend for food and shelter.

The Federal Surplus Commodity Administration has promised to supply what foods it can. These will be beans, butter, cabbage, celery and rice. From these meals must be prepared three times a day. How long it will last even relief officials don't know. Administrator Leo M. Lyons and Mayor Edward J. Kelley have informed Governor Henry Horner that funds are exhausted.

Only a special session of the legislature can authorize the city to dig deeper into its funds.

RELIEF CLIENTS STAGE SIT-DOWN STRIKE.

CLEVELAND, May 16. (UP)—One thousand relief clients staged a sit-down strike in the city hall tonight in protest against week-to-week allotments for the necessities of life in this city of a million.

They remained in the council chambers after the group had voted $80,000 from several city funds to tide over 75,000 relief clients for another week in the city's direst relief crisis.

Several shouted that they wanted permanent food orders and one yelled, "Money for relief food averages only $1.12 a person per day now in Cleveland!"

No regular food orders have been issued since April 30.

as Privy Chamberlain.

NEW YORK, May 16. (AP)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith was invested tonight as a privy chamberlain in the household of Pope Pius XI in recognition of his "distinguished works for charity."

The office of chamberlain was first created in 1555 to assist permanent lay chamberlains. The duties, when in Rome, are to assist in the daily personal service of the Pope. The dress consists of gold-striped black dress trousers, a red jacket with gold braid collar, dress sword and bi-cornered hat.

WIFE HEARS NEWS OF DEATH BY RADIO

Knoxville Woman Learns Husband Dead as She Cooks Breakfast.

A housewife in Knoxville, listening to the radio as she prepared breakfast for herself and her one-year-old child early yesterday morning, heard an announcer break in on the music and announce the death of her husband in Atlanta's hotel fire.

"Atlanta, Georgia," the voice said. "Nine of the persons who perished in a hotel fire here have been identified. One of these is James Carroll Bonds, 31-year-old truck driver, of 422 Minnesota avenue, Knoxville."

The housewife was Mrs. Bonds and the child was Patsy Faye Bonds. Both trembled at the news. The mother at first could not believe what she had heard, but neighbors who came to comfort her finally convinced her of her husband's death.

She disclosed later that he came to Atlanta each week end on business, but he had not wanted to come on the last trip. He usually stayed at a boarding house in Atlanta, she said, but he was accompanied on his last trip by the store manager, Kenneth Henry, 28, who perished in the flames also.

Besides his wife and child, Mr. Bonds is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Bonds, of Danville, Tenn.; a sister, Mrs. Lloyd French, of Knoxville, and four brothers, Hollis, Kenneth, Murrill and J. Bonds, all of Knoxville.

$61,000 IS RAISED FOR JEWS' RELIEF

Victory Meeting Wednesday To Close Drive Aided by 300 Volunteers.

Establishing a new record in philanthropy, the Atlanta Jewish Welfare Fund yesterday reached the quota of $61,000 set for the 1938 drive to aid relief and reconstruction efforts in America, Europe and Palestine. The total figure was registered at the second report meeting at the Hotel Ansley as colonels of the three main divisions of the drive reported late results of the city-wide campaign.

Approximately 130 volunteers cheered the announcement of the drive's success.

Due to emergencies which demand immediate and generous relief measures, the Atlanta drive will continue through Wednesday, it was stated by Meyer Regenstein, campaign chairman, and I. M. Weinstein, vice chairman. It is expected, both leaders pointed out, that the quota will be surpassed by a wide margin.

Individual quotas set for the three divisions of the campaign have been exceeded by substantial sums, last-minute campaign figures showed yesterday. A new quota was fixed by campaign leaders for the women's division, headed by Mrs. Donald Oberdorfer and Mrs. Robert M. Travis. Mrs. Herbert Elsas and Mrs. Arthur I. Harris are co-chairmen of the advance gifts committee for women.

A victory meeting on Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. at the Hotel Ansley will close the drive, which has enlisted the efforts of more than 300 Atlantans.

ATTORNEYS CLASH AT HARLAN TRIAL

'Present Administration' Brought Into Case; Eight Jurors Selected.

LONDON, Ky., May 16. (AP)—Eight jurors were tentatively seated late today in the trial of 66 Harlan county defendants on charges of violating the Wagner labor relations act by conspiring to deprive miners of the right to unionize.

Th phrasing of a defense question to two veniremen by former Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson drew an objection from John Metcalf, of Winchester, United States district attorney.

The question was: "Would the fact that the prosecution of this case is being conducted by the Department of Justice of the present administration in Washington influence your judgment in any way?"

Metcalf asserted: "This is a case between the United States and these defendants and I can't see that the 'present administration' has anything to do with it."

Judge Ford overruled the objection and in both cases, the answer was negative.

Mary Helen Roop, of Carrollton, To Be Feted at Novel Party Today

By Sally Forth.

MRS. HAROLD MCKENZIE, who was born and reared in Carrollton and lived there until her marriage a few years ago, will be hostess at a Carrollton party today in honor of a Carrollton bride-elect, Mary Helen Roop. As you doubtless remember, Mary Helen's engagement was announced recently to Hugh Hooch, of Gainesville, and the wedding is set for May 25 with a brilliant evening ceremony to be held at the First Baptist church in Carrollton.

Mrs. McKenzie, who before her marriage was Sue Tanner, will entertain her guests at luncheon and bridge, the scene of the party to be the attractive summer house beside the rippling brook which forms a charming feature of her rear garden. This inviting retreat is furnished in woody tones of brown, green, and orange, and the hostess will cover her luncheon table with brown linen and center it with an arrangement of fruits and vegetables, which will repeat these rustic tints. Striped napkins of orange, brown and green will add a further touch of color and the tables will be set with glass and china in the same tints.

Bridge will be played in the afternoon, with the score prizes to be attractive and useful kitchen novelties. In addition, there will be an individual progression prize awarded at each table, this also to be a kitchen gadget. Mrs. W. J. Weaver and Mrs. John Turner, of Carrollton, will assist their sister in entertaining.

Motoring from Carrollton for the affair, in addition to the bride-elect and her mother, Mrs. E. Roop, will be Mesdames Horace Stewart, Vernon Folds, Shirley Boykin, J. A. Mandeville, Hilton Tyus, T. A. Herndon, Comp Shaefer, Mary Bickford, Frank Kimble, J. H. Beury, Buford Boykin, Joe Aycock, C. G. Lotts, Carl Stevens, Sam Boykin, Oliver Harris, Dick Newell, W. A. Cannon, Misses Sarah Hansard and Celeste and Frances Long.

THE telephone company got all the winnings in a poker game that was enjoyed here on Saturday. One of the feminine players has a most devoted admirer who is far, far away. He has spent much time in Atlanta and has met each member of Saturday's poker party, and a most delightful impression he made upon each one.

Before the game started, one of the players suggested that all the winnings be pooled for a telephone call to the young Loch-nivar in the west. The idea made a perfect hit, for this was one time when the losers had as much fun as the winners, for each of the players had a brief chat with the interesting absentee.

HONORS received by Atlanta girls away at college never fail to command interest of the folks back home, and today Sally Forth takes pleasure in announcing that Mary Jane Gentry has had three high compliments paid her. This young schoolgirl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gentry, and was graduated last May from Washington Seminary, where she made an outstanding record.

Mary Jane now attends Virginia Interment College in Bristol, and her latest honor was her recent selection as editor for next year of The Cauldron, the college publication. She was also one of the very small group at the school who were elected to Phi Theta Kappa, honor society of the Junior Colleges of America. She was also chosen by the junior class to serve as treasurer during the past year.

The end of the month will witness Mary Jane's return to Atlanta, where she will spend a few weeks with her parents before going to Mississippi, where she will visit a classmate, Marguerite McDonald, at her ante-bellum plantation home near Vicksburg.

ONE of the first affairs to honor "sweet girl graduates" was the dinner party given last evening by Mary Campbell Verrett at her home on Rivers road for Georgia Oliver, who will be graduated from Washington Seminary this month. The girls, who were limited to a group of those friends of the honor guests, gathered in the attractive patio of the home, and although they termed themselves "spinsters," they wagers that each member of the group will continue the pop-

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—I did not have space on Saturday to tell you anything about my visit to the government homestead near Charleston, W. Va. I had always called it "Red House," but discovered that the post office is "Eleanor," and noted with some amusement that the sign at the entrance to the homestead reads: "Eleanor Unincorporated."

The Legion post met me and escorted me to the stand in the park which is being developed. The Women's Auxiliary of the post presented me with a lovely hand-woven runner which had been made in the craft shop, a basket of flowers, and a bunch of roses which one homesteader had picked in his own garden.

Except for their home gardens, their agricultural ventures are run on a co-operative basis. A tract with an overhead watering system should produce some very good early vegetables. A small nursery of trees has been planted and the purchase of a dairy farm at some little distance from the homestead looks as though it would be profitable. They need an industry and are still in an unsettled condition because a visible means of permanent employment is not yet in sight.

I visited several families and met at the work they have done in their homes. The ingenuity and loving care which has gone into the furnishing and arranging of these houses is rarely found among people who are not yet quite secure in their future. It shows courage and good morale and I feel very proud of this group of people. They have had hard times and have met them with better courage than most of us.

In the project recently opened co-operative restaurant, the state administrator of the National Youth Administration lunched with us. He has a tree survey project for the boys of the homestead and a weaving project for the girls. I did not have time to see much of the work done by the Youth Administration, but Mr. Glenn S. Callahan, the director, is full of enthusiasm. I think the praise which he gives to the young people working under him on the construction projects is really deserved.

Forty thousand young men and women between the ages of 16 and 25 have been on the program since it started and 8,000 are at present participating in student aid and work programs. These young people, under expert guidance of course, have built a plant herbarium at Marshall College, water supply cisterns for rural schools, gymnasiums, community centers, youth work centers, school buildings, a museum for negro historical records, playgrounds, athletic fields and have engaged in many more activities I cannot begin to cover. These things could not have been done except through this program and they will be of far more value to the communities than the money which has been expended.

After speaking at the dinner of the State Federation of Business and Professional Women, I took the night train back to Washington and found a group of Todhunter graduates with Miss Dickerman and Miss Goodwin, awaiting me at the White House. We had lunch for some high school graduates from Arthurdale, W. Va., visited some of the old historic houses in Alexandria, Va., and held a "garden party" indoors because of the rain.

Bridge Lite

By HAROLD SHARPSTEEN

SHOWING TEN CARDS. How to signal partner that you hold two biddable five-card suits is one of the simplest bidding nifties in bridge, yet a great many better-than-average players have probably never thought about it. An elementary reverse does the trick and no tournament pair can afford to be without it.

To eliminate any possible chance for confusion consider first the natural rank and rotation of the suits in the standard contract bridge deck . . . spades . . . hearts . . . diamonds . . . clubs.

The adjacent . . . touching suits . . . are spades and hearts . . . hearts and diamonds . . . diamonds and clubs.

Non-adjacent suits . . . those which do not touch each other . . . are spades and diamonds . . . spades and clubs . . . hearts and clubs. In each case there is a middle suit.

Bids Higher Suit.

(1) Holding two four-card adjacent biddable suits, the higher-ranking suit is bid first.

(2) Holding two adjacent biddable suits, one four-card the other five-card, the four-card is named first when it is the higher-ranking suit.

(3) When the higher-ranking of two adjacent biddable suits is a five-card suit, the other four-card, the higher-ranking five-card suit is bid first.

S-4 (2) S-4 (3) S-3

The higher-ranking of the two adjacent biddable suits is named first in each situation.

Singleton or Void?

Now partner opens one heart and on the second round of bidding names the adjacent spade suit. He has revealed the order of bidding the suits to deny any of the three above holdings and to reveal to five-card adjacent biddable suits.

Partner's only worry left is whether opener holds a singleton or a void in one of his remaining two suits and there is no law against bidding the void suit on the third round to tell him.

When the suits are 6-5 bid any six-card suit first. When the suits are 6-4 name any six-card suit first and rebid it.

Till tomorrow (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

PLEASANT HOMES BY ELIZABETH M'RAE BOYKIN. CONSIDER THE BATHROOM.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Local girls make good in a recent vote for the world's 10 best coiffed women. Running the list is "Hold That Kiss", Ruth wearing them with a list of titled ladies and socialites are Anita Louise, Olivia de Havilland and Norma Shearer. So give three hair-raising cheers for the home team.

The swashbuckling fervor of "Robin Hood" got Olivia to let her braids down and those cloistered tresses went waving to the technician winds. This hangerover friskiness has seeped into "Fours A Crowd," where the serene de Havilland permits a fluffed poodleish bang to enliven life. Norma Shearer's preferred clip is the pageboy, tucked-under ends tapering to sleek forehead line—a natural turnabout from the extravagantly pompadoured wigs she wears in "Marie Antoinette."

Norma further steps out of the pomp and ceremony of queenly gowns (one weighing 52 pounds by studio scale) into a home dinner frock of chiseled sophistication. A black silk jersey anklet skirt topped with bugle-beaded sweater, the yoke medallioning "N. S.'s" initials.

Margaret Lindsay, a commoner visitor to the royal "Marie Antoinette" stage, managed to salvage an idea from its 18th century barber trim. Seeing Tyrone Power and Joseph Schildkraut glory in their courtly bows, Margaret now toys with this head-dress for "When Were You Born." And it looks like the community's caught on for I bumped into a hatless Ann Rutherford (in "Love Finds Andy Hardy") roller skating with a wiggy bow wagging behind (no pun intended). Her rink outfit combined dusty rose suede cardigan with blue corduroy culottes, a Creed formula.

Don't be misled that hair ribbon effects are just for the cutie pie type. Ain't so, Merle Oberon in "Over the Moon" influences a swirling black satin gown with ivory grosgrain forehead corsage; Hedy Lamarr, the exotic lady from "Algiers," twines pastel chiffon in her Recamier swirl. And if not hair bows, Ruth Hussey dots on glove bows, owning a pair of Schiaparelli's longies with little finger tied in "reminder" ribbon.

Its Bright-and-Shining-ness. And the test of a good bath room isn't in tricky guest finger-tips towels and fancy bath salts. A bath room is only as good as its plumbing and its bright-and-shining-ness.

Most bath rooms omit the all-important point of providing a good cache for cleaning oddsments. This should be very near at hand so you won't be tempted to leave a soap-ring around the tub or a splash to catch dirt on the floor. Perhaps the bottom of the linen closet will provide the place if it's hard by the bathroom door. Or better have a cupboard built behind or on the bath room door itself, or under the washstand.

A Whisk and a Rub-Down. There you will want a mild cleansing powder (mild because any harsh cleanser will ruin the gloss of the enamel and cause the tub and bowl and basin to become rough and twice as hard to clean), a long handled brush for reaching around the back side of the tub, a toilet bowl brush and a short handled wet mop for quick rub-me-up jobs. Several pieces of old sheets are grand cloths for giving the mirrors a whisk after a steamy shower. Then fortify yourself with a little mental note to give your bath room a quick rub-down every morning as well as a few winks of attention later in the day. That way you'll never have that all-gone feeling when a guest arrives and you have to say, "Oh please excuse the mess in the bath room—you know how the men folks are."

A soft cloth and lukewarm water with a dash of kitchen ammonia in it will make a sparkling job on wall-tile. And have a regular routine about the rest of the cleaning. Do the tub first, inside and out, splashing water to your heart's content. Next the toilet bowl and top, and finally the basin and mirror. Then rearrange the towels, hanging the damp ones on a rack to dry or providing fresh linen when necessary. Have all the "top" of the bath room shining, then wind up with the floor.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

TAKE DIET AS IT COMES AND REDUCING IS EASIER.

It is easier to stay on a diet if you do not look too far ahead. Never plan your diet for more than one day at a time, and deal with each meal as it comes along.

While you are having breakfast, don't think about three months' breakfasts on a limited number of calories or you will begin to wonder whether you can hold out. Try to think like this: "My diet is a success. I've had only 250 calories and a good breakfast, and I am losing weight."

Each meal should be fairly satisfying to help you stay on your diet; therefore include an egg in the breakfast menu. You have no idea how it sticks to the ribs. For the 300-calorie maximum allowance for this meal you can have fruit, one egg, one slice of toast, one-half pat of butter and coffee with a measured amount of cream and sugar.

Why worry about lunch until noon!

At noon you are allowed 350 calories, with this type menu: Bouillon with carrot sticks, celery and radishes, a meat and lettuce sandwich or a cheese sandwich with mustard or reducer's mayonnaise, and fresh fruit. Now, seriously, can you complain about that meal?

And to make sure that you do not think about dinner too early in the day, have tea or a glass of skim milk in the midafternoon. There is nothing better than a glass of milk to stay your appetite—and you need the calcium, anyway.

Dinner for 600 calories can be such a good meal that if you have not planned it yourself you would not know you were on a diet. You can have lean meat, two vegetables, a salad, dessert and demitasse. Any complaints? And . . . on that meal you are still losing weight.

Nothing is better than a glass of milk to stay the appetite.

There is a day gone and you have done what you set out to do. You have kept within two-thirds of your normal calorie allowance and for the other one-third you have been drawing on body fat. Even though the loss does not show up on the scales tomorrow morning, you are reducing. Of course, daily registration of your weight may vary regardless of your diet. But when you hold yourself down to your day's calorie allowance you are compelled to draw on stored calories, in the form of fat, for some of your energy. Every time you take a meal that is planned according to your reducing calorie allowance, you are cutting down on your stored calories. The results will be apparent in the week's average of your weight registration.

YOUR reducing program only seems hopeless when you try to look too far ahead. Take your diet as it comes—one meal at a time—and you will find that reducing is easier.

AN IMPORTANT LETTER IN HER LIFE BUT MARY CAN'T WRITE IT

SHE NEEDS A FEW GOOD POINTERS.

Faithfully, Mary answers the Help Wanted advertisements—but never gets a reply. "What's wrong with my letters?" she worries.

Nothing that a few touches wouldn't set right. Take the colorless note she's started:

"I saw your ad in today's paper. I was assistant bookkeeper for the Jones Box Company one year. I kept all the books for the Magna Radio Store last year."

Away with that cheap error—"ad" for advertisement. Break up that row of sentences starting with "I." Talk right at the start about the job which gave you the type of experience the employer is asking for.

"I am answering your advertisement for a bookkeeper. At the Magna Radio Store, where I worked from April, 1937, to May, 1938, I kept a complete set of books. Half the sales were on the installment plan—giving me the kind of experience you want."

HEALTH TALKS

EXERCISE TO RELIEVE OR CURE HERNIA.

In the monograph on hernia which is available to any reader who asks for it and encloses a three-cent stamped envelope bearing his or her address (no clipping will suffice), I say:

In many cases of recent hernia where the protrusion is small, a spontaneous cure is obtained by regular exercises to develop and strengthen the natural muscular support. The best exercises for this purpose are daily leg-raising calisthenics, taken while you lie supine and always supporting the hernia or suspected hernia with the middle fingers of your hands while you do the exercises—lifting first one leg, later both, to vert.

Here, here, what's this? Why don't people tell me these things? Of the tens of thousands of persons to whom this monograph has been sent in reply to their written requests not one has ever called attention to the wrong spelling of the word vertical. It is spelled "verticle" in the monograph.

... lifting first one leg, later both, to vertical and slowly lowering each leg again. Of course, other exercises such as squatting from upright position repeatedly, belly breathing, etc., help to strengthen the weak abdominal muscles, but the one suggested is most suitable, if carried on faithfully night and morning for many months. The same exercise is equally beneficial for women with femoral hernia."

Two months ago a man wrote from New York:

"I have taken the exercises as outlined by you for several years and have obtained much benefit for long-standing double rupture. At first I dared not attempt the exercises without my truss on, but about 1 1/2 years ago I decided to do as you suggested, leaving off the truss at night and morning for a few weeks. I have now been without the truss and no ill effects."

It is not quite correct to say that I suggested leaving off the truss in such a case. I suggest the exercises should be taken in "cases of recent hernia where the protrusion is small." In old hernias where the protrusion is large, or in double hernias, the patient should follow the advice of his or her own physician in reference to leaving off the truss at any time.

Most umbilical or navel hernias in infants are spontaneously cured by the time the child is three years old, especially if the child's muscular development, nutrition and growth are normal and a suitable belt or other support is kept on to prevent the bulging.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

X-ray Treatment of Bronchiectasis.

I am 63, have bronchiectasis and emphysema. Would like your opinion of the X-ray treatment. (A. L. S.)

Answer.—X-ray treatment, by a radiologist, a physician skilled in the use of X-ray, has given excellent results in long-standing cases of bronchiectasis. Incidentally, I think every bronchiectasis patient should practice inversion for a few minutes on waking every morning and a few times every day—for instance, lying across the bed prone, with elbows and forearms resting on the floor. Such inversion favors drainage and clearing of the dilated bronchi.

Vitamins.

Is garlic a better source of vitamins than other vegetables? If so, is it effective to use garlic tablets? (C. T.)

Answer.—No.

Carbon Monoxide.

Would one sleeping say 15 feet above street level get any dangerous effects from the carbon monoxide from automobiles in street? (C. S.)

Answer.—It is extremely unlikely. However, a group of factory workers were overcome by carbon monoxide when smoke from a neighboring stack happened to blow through the roof where they worked. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

IF CLERKS DON'T SMILE THE PURCHASE IS FRUSTRATED.

The management of a shop the heart of downtown Cincinnati will not have glum, sour-faced clerks behind the counters.

Phils Blast Giants, 12-3; York Homers With 3 On, Tigers Win

FOUR HOME RUNS FEATURE ATTACK OF PHILLIE BATS

MacFayden Limits Dodgers to 6 Hits as Bees Cop, 5-4.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Phillies, who hadn't played a ball game since last Tuesday, and the Giants, who hadn't played since last Wednesday, met in Baker Bowl yesterday, and the Phillies were on the long end of a 12-3 score.

The Phils wasted no time. They belted Hal Schumacher, making his first appearance since May 7, for four runs in the first and knocked him out of the box with Bucky Walters two more in the second. In the fifth they clipped young Bill Lohman for another cluster of four, then finished it off with two off Hy Vandenberg in the sixth.

In all they collected 13 hits, four of them homers, for 33 bases. Corbett, Martin, Whitney and Klein clouted the four-baggers, Martin and Mueller hit triples, and Scharein, Browne and Pitcher Bucky Walters, who got two, smacked doubles.

Walters, who held the National league leaders to eight hits, brought his record for the season to three victories and three defeats and checked the Giants' winning streak which they had brought back from their western trip, at five straight. It was the New Yorkers' fourth defeat in 22 games, and the Phils' fifth victory in 20.

The Giants reached Walters for four singles and two runs in the sixth, and got their last run on Ripple's ninth-inning homer, his fifth of the year.

Scoring three runs after two were out in the seventh, the Boston Bees won the final game of their series with the Dodgers, 5 to 4. Danny MacFayden held Brooklyn to six hits to gain his second victory of the year.

Tubize has won 10 out of their last 15 games played, beating such teams as Peerless Mills and Ogilthorpe, and is leading the North Georgia Textile league, which has the cream of the teams in the northern part of the state.

Manager Dave Harris has announced that he will start Ralph West, former Atlanta Cracker, on the mound tonight against Henry Burroughs, former Knoxville Smokie twirler.

Other players on the Tubize nine include such stars as Powerhouse Hanson, Dizzy Dean, former Ogilthorpe pitcher, and Eddie Baxter, all of whom are well known to the Atlanta baseball fans.

JOHNNY HILL EYES MAJOR LEAGUE CHANCE

Wasn't Given Square Deal, Marv Duke

PITTSBURGH, May 16.—(AP)—Marvin Duke, a transplanted Georgia southpaw who pitched 21 victories for Montreal in the International league last year, headed back there today voicing in a soft drawl his complaint that the Pittsburgh Pirates did not give him a "square shake."

After spending 10 weeks with the Pirates on an option from the Royals, Duke was ordered back Saturday by Manager Pie Traynor while the Pirates were in Chicago.

"I pitched in only about five games during the training season," he told newspapermen, "and never came close to getting into a game after the season opened."

"There's not much use shouting your head off about something like this, but I just can't understand it. How do they know I can't pitch when they never gave me a chance?"

Duke said he thought some other major league clubs, particularly Washington, were interested in him until the Pirates, who have a working agreement with Montreal, withdrew him from the market.

He has been in baseball eight years, five in the International league. The Yankees had strings on him for three years at Newark and finally traded him to Montreal for Bob Seeds, the slugger who knocked seven home runs in two games recently.

Traynor was quoted as saying Montreal asked $25,000 for Duke and that this was too steep a price for the 29-year-old hurler.

"I'm going to leave for Montreal today," Duke said. "I talked to Hector Racine (club owner) who said he would make everything all right for me."

INDIANS DEFEAT MACKS TO TAKE SECOND SPOT, 4-3

Gehring Also Hits for Circuit as Detroit Tops Nats, 13-7.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Vernon Kennedy, who came to Detroit in the trade with the Chicago White Sox last winter, registered his fifth pitching triumph as the Tigers hammered out a 13-7 win over the Washington Senators yesterday.

Kennedy allowed seven hits, holding the Senators in check until Detroit had built up a commanding margin.

Rudy York and Charley Gehring hit home runs for the Tigers, the former's clout coming with the bases full in the sixth. Buddy Lewis hit a homer for Washington in the sixth with the sack empty.

Four hurlers toiled for the Senators and all save Harry Kelley, who worked the eighth, were ineffective. Ken Chase started but retired after two were out in the third. He allowed two runs and two hits and walked seven. Jo Kohlman followed Chase and worked through the fifth, giving three hits and as many runs.

The Cleveland Indians tied up Philadelphia's Athletics, 3-3, in the seventh, and then won in the 10th on successive doubles by Odell Hale and Jeff Heath.

With the Yankees idle, the victory shoved Cleveland into undisputed second place.

Connie Mack had two recruits in the game—Dick Siebert, from Columbus, who batted .500, and Sam Chapman, All-American football player from the University of California, who was hitless and had one error.

Johnny Allen, who started, gave way to Pinch Hitter Roy Weatherly in the ninth with the bases full. Weatherly's tap forced Trosky the plate but left the bases loaded.

FACTS BEHIND OUR HUMAN CUISINOMIS

When meeting you
"SHAKE HANDS"
Why?

HERE'S ANOTHER
CUSTOM BASED ON FACT:

Before the DAWN OF HISTORY, one of Man's most natural customs had its beginnings in a simple gesture. By dropping his club or stone war axe and extending his empty hand, Primitive Man showed that he was unarmed and peacefully inclined. From this crude manner of inspiring CONFIDENCE in early times comes our handclasp of today.

The Confidence that the public today places in the name GLENMORE is based upon the way this house has made whiskey for two generations. The traditional GLENMORE formula of using only the very finest selected grains... together with Kentucky's famed deep-well water, has produced an unusual Kentucky Straight Bourbon that is the pride of Kentucky's largest independent distillery. The unswerving policy of giving the most faithful attention to the preparation of this fine Bourbon brings its distinctive GLENMORE flavor. These are the facts behind the widespread custom that everyone knows when we say pour GLENMORE... you get more.

Black Crackers, Barons To End Series Tonight

A colorful baseball game under the lights at Ponce de Leon park will be offered diamond followers tonight at 8:30 o'clock when the Atlanta Black Crackers and the Birmingham Black Barons conclude what has been one of the most stirring series staged here in a number of years.

The boys will be in there bearing down all the way in the finale tonight. For Birmingham, a win will mean an even break in the four-game series. For the Black Crackers, a triumph will mean victory in their first series of the year in the Negro American league. Atlanta won the series opener last Thursday and these crack machines divided an exciting Sunday double-header before a big and appreciative crowd.

The Black Crackers, from their manager down to the bat boy, are a hustling, fire-eating, colorful array of horseshoe swatters when they play. And fans, both white and colored, are learning that when the men of Manager "Nish" Williams take the field, they are in for first-class diamond entertainment from gong to gong.

Dodgers Release Hoyt and Manush

Waite 18-Year Man, Heinie Has Been in Big Show 14 Seasons; Roy Spencer Also Shipped.

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP)—Two great names of baseball were released from the big league box scores today with Brooklyn's outright release of Pitcher Waite Hoyt, the 39-year-old "schoolboy wonder," and Slugger Heinie Manush.

Hoyt, the pink slip meant an apparent end of 18 years in the big show. A decade ago, with the Yankees, he was about the best in the business, and his decline has been gradual and grudging. Manush broke into the Detroit outfield 14 years ago, and in five seasons since did he fail to hit over .300. In 1926 he led the American league with a mark of .333.

Larry MacPhail, new business manager of the Brooklyn, promised some weeks ago there would be "house cleaning" if the club didn't show signs of life by May and this was it. At the same time he released the veteran catcher Roy Spencer, and sent Pitcher George Jeffcoat to Kansas City on loan.

Hoyt, who has played with 11 clubs in the two leagues since he started with the Boston Sox in 1919, might have had his departure somewhat by magazine article he wrote last year, in which he asserted the American league was stronger than the National.

ment among the National leaguers and the batters proceeded to pin the veteran's ears back every time he took the mound this spring. MacPhail, however, said he was not influenced by the article and that Hoyt simply didn't have it any more.

Loss of his player salary will not perturb Hoyt greatly as he is in demand as a radio commentator and is an accomplished undertaker besides.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 16.—(AP)—James C. (Battling Bozo) Hambricht, partially blind former light-heavyweight boxer, suffered a back injury today when he was knocked down by an automobile on a downtown street.

Condition of Hambricht, who has been undergoing a series of operations at Memphis to restore his sight, was reported as "not serious" by hospital attaches.

SMITHIE VICTORY WILL GIVE THEM CITY PREP TITLE

Purple Win Would Cause Tie and May Force Play-Off.

By ROY WHITE.

Tech High and Boys' High, bitter prep rivals in all sports, will battle at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Ponce de Leon park for the city prep baseball championship.

The game was postponed from the last round of the first half of the schedule.

Tech High beat Boys' High, 6 to 1, last week to take the leadership of the league in a feature of the last round of the regular schedule, and has a chance to win the title this afternoon.

GOOD CHANCE.

Boys' High on the other hand has a grand chance to throw the race into a tie and force Tech High to play Commercial a postponed game and then perhaps force a playoff for the championship.

The Smithies have been beaten only by G. M. A., while Boys' High has two losses on its card.

Humber, who last week limited the Purples to a single blow, will again be on the mound this afternoon in an effort to give Tech High another baseball championship, and Coach Sidney Scarborough, former Tech High star, his first championship.

Coach Shorty Doyal was undecided last night as to his starting hurler today.

MAY PLAY TYPISTS.

Should Boys' High win this afternoon, Tech High will play Commercial High on Dixie's field Wednesday afternoon, while a Tech High victory will ring the curtain down on prep sports for the spring term.

It should be another of those famous Boys' High-Tech High battles, with a city prep baseball championship at stake—and well worth the while to spectators.

Tech High has won five and lost one, while Boys' High has won four and lost two.

Norcross Wins To Go Into Tie for 1st Place.

Norcross went into a three-way tie for leadership of the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference with a 14-to-11 victory over Southwest DeKalb Monday afternoon. It was a postponed game and leaves Norcross, Fulton and Marietta tied for the championship.

Kelly with two doubles and three singles in five trips to the plate led Norcross' 18-hit attack on Knight. R. Cofer also hit well for the winners.

Lemaster hit best for the losers with three for four.

Plans for a playoff will be made within the next few days, when coaches of the three teams get together.

Little Rock Has Spent Almost Entire Month at Home, But Road Trip Will Test Club's Real Strength.

By Jack Troy.

It has been more or less overlooked in the general rating of teams. I mean the fact that Little Rock hasn't had any sort of road trip yet to determine just how good the Travelers are away from home.

Since the season opened on April 14, Doc Prothro's Travelers have traveled only to New Orleans, Knoxville, Birmingham and Nashville.

Their longest trip away from home has been seven days. When the Pebbles conclude their current series with Chattanooga and then play two games with Atlanta on Friday and Saturday, it will mean that Little Rock has spent almost an entire month playing in home surroundings.

This has helped, no doubt, in enabling the Travelers to get off to a great start. The Crackers, who have been dividing their time between second and third place, have been a road club almost exclusively since the season opened.

When the Travelers finally depart on an extended road trip, the first real line on their ability will be offered. Doc Prothro already has expressed dissatisfaction with the defending champions.

And in so doing he is probably laying out an eye on the schedule which soon will call for Little Rock to hit the high road and meet the enemy in foreign surroundings.

Atlanta fans will get their first look at the Travelers during the Crackers' first real home stand, which begins Sunday. Doc Prothro's club will follow Memphis here.

Birmingham Club Has Real Power.

One only has to consult the box scores daily to discover that Birmingham, not Chattanooga, is the real power club in the Southern league.

Chattanooga with its Singtons, Gills, Alexanders, Miles and Bloodworth was supposed to devastate the league with its punch.

But Birmingham is really the power club. The Barons have bobbed up with a new outfielder, Glynn, and now has Red Howell back in the lineup.

The Barons looked like a second division outfit in the beginning, but it becomes more apparent each day that the sluggers from Slagtown will make a real race of it. On top of their hitting they have rather good pitching.

Cracker Pitching Is Satisfactory.

Only an utter collapse of the pitching staff will cause the Atlanta club to go into the market for pitching help, President Earl Mann said yesterday.

"As long as the club continues to function so well there will be no changes," he added.

Leo Moon has been having a streak of bad luck with his pitching, but he is expected to come around satisfactorily.

Some disposition may be made of Johnny Michaels, who now is on the suspended list, but nothing definite has been decided.

The Crackers lost numerous early games they could have won with just a little clutch hitting and Russ Peters, the new second baseman, seems to have supplied the answer to that.

Football Coaches To Hold Reunion.

With all the pressure on the track coaches, the football maestros will gather at Birmingham Saturday to relax and enjoy themselves.

The grid mentors hold their annual reunion on the occasion of the annual conference track meet. They heckle the track coaches and usually put two or

L. Appling Has Cast Removed From Leg

CHICAGO, May 16.—(AP)—Luke Appling, Chicago White Sox shortstop, who suffered a broken ankle sliding into second base in an exhibition game March 27, had the cast removed from the mending member today and said he planned to start light workouts this week.

Appling, placed on the retired list after the injury, will be eligible for active duty June 10.

Meanwhile, First Baseman Joe Kuhel, forced out of play last week with a wrenched ankle, may return to his position Friday in the series opener with New York's Yankees.

CATCHES FIRST.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., May 16.—(AP)—Bill Boardman, local theater manager, was fishing with an elegant split bamboo pole today, awarded for catching the first tarpon in the city's third annual tarpon round-up.

Boardman's fish, caught four hours after the round-up opened, weighed 45 pounds.

with tears. There was laughter because an assistant professional said:

"I'm a third of his age," said the assistant professional, "and I'll well take 78. I'll give the game up." And he did, for that tournament at any rate.

The old gentleman finished with two 73's for a total of 288. That has been good enough to win the British and American opens since the war. Not once but several times.

And, although I do not lay claim to being an authority on records in general, this surely must have been one of the greatest athletic achievements of all time.

And I think his little interview—"a helping hand to the young ones starting out who are 'triers'—sticking by friends and trying to do things for them in return for their efforts—cheering on the efforts of others and doing one's own best—" well, it may sound a bit like copy-book maxims, but after all who has disproved them?

And I think I am willing to take the word of an old man, who has had always people cheering for him, and who has many, many friends, as to what is the best path to follow.

Sandy Herd and his great 288 in a major tournament—with a 67 on the card—all at the age of 70—must be something to remember.

Thesz and Piers, Cox and Bartush On Big Mat Card

Joe (Ringpost) Cox, the Mountain View (Mo.) bone-crusher, comes to Warren arena again tomorrow night and this time his shady tactics will be tested at Billy Bartush, the burly Lithuanian who is quite a villain in his own league and plenty tough to beat.

This looks as one of the roughest battles seen here in some time with Cox likely to meet his match at the rough stuff.

Louis Thesz, the Hungarian who formerly held the world's heavyweight title, has agreed to a return bout with Henry Piers, of Holland, and this scientific match will headline the show. Last week Piers battled Thesz to a standstill for more than 40 minutes, but a fall from the ring injured his shoulder and he had to retire.

Piers has won many friends here with his brilliant grappling.

A pair of high-ranking newcomers make their first appearances here in the opener. They are Am Rascher, another Lithuanian and former Indiana U. star, and Pete Baitram, of New York.

LEWIS PRIMES FOR RAY BOUT

In fighting trim, John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight champion of the world, arrived here yesterday to put the finishing touches on his training for the 15-round fight Thursday night with Elmer Ray, champion of Florida, at Ponce de Leon park.

Honey Boy Jones, stablemate of Lewis, who meets Nelson Pryor in a 10-round supporting bout, was in the party.

The other principals in the big colored fight show, Bearcat Obie and Unknown Winston, are in top shape.

Cleve Roby, who is putting on the outstanding fistie attraction, has not announced the principals in the two other bouts, but promises two fast bouts to round out the 40-round card.

"Why not—that big red tin is just chock-full of happy 'makin's' smokes. Tastes better, rolls quicker—there's no spillin', no blowin' away, no bunchin'." "Fancy tobacco as to taste," adds Bruce, "but nothing fancy about the cost of those 70 ripe, tasty 'makin's' smokes in a P. A. tin. When it comes to smokin' joy, I say Prince Albert is downright generous." (P. A.'s the National Joy Smoke for pipe-smokers too.)

EW YORK, May 16.—(AP)—Stocks got off on the wrong foot today's market and leaders posted fractions to around 2 1/2.

Dealings were extremely sluggish until the final hour, when there was a slight pickup in activity. Transfers of 395,920 shares are the smallest for a full day since May 2. They compared with 950 last Friday. The Associated Press average of 60 issues was 1/2 of a point at 39.8.

Trading forces, brokers said, are inclined to lighten commitments pending the results of tomorrow's Pennsylvania primaries, some thought, might have repercussions.

In addition to great stimulation found in the news either in Washington or elsewhere, the pessimistic picture was cloudy as analysts were beginning to resign to the belief that trends would be in evidence late summer or early fall at when hopes held out for a turn for the better.

Aircraft received some attention in the morning on prospects for the manufacturers to continue through the remainder of the year. These stocks ground at the last along with the group, although none was really weak.

Deals were unresponsive to the late of the American Iron & Steel Institute that mill operations, the first time in four weeks, showed a general list up.

Decisions were about a lull. There was a ruling that the General Electric in a suit and the stock dipped 1/4 at 34-3/4. Power company shares were as heavy as other stocks. The high court agreed to deny the validity of the TVA appeal by 18 southeastern states.

Investors pointed lower, along with commodities. Wheat, futures at Chicago, fell 1-1/4 to 2 cents. Corn yielded 5-1/8 to 7-8. On down 50 to 65 cents a bushel. Sterling and the French franc were a shade off in terms of dollar. European securities were inclined to back.

SPALDING RETAINS OLD TAX SCHEDULE

Assessment Increase Action Rescinded by Board of Equalizers.

GRiffin, Ga., May 16.—The Spalding county board of tax equalizers here today rescinded its action in raising the assessment on city property, and voted instead to follow the past procedure of taking 70 per cent of the city valuation as a basis for county and state taxation.

The equalizers were told by the city and county commissioners "this is no time to raise anyone's taxes." Previously, the board of county tax equalizers had voted to increase the assessment against city property from 70 per cent of its valuation, as assessed by the city, to 80 per cent of its valuation.

Judge D. R. Cumming, chairman of the Spalding board of county commissioners, pointed out that to add to the present tax burden would indicate that the county authorities would seek to offset the next tax plans of the state.

He indicated Judge Sibley's decision would be appealed to the United States circuit court of appeals in New Orleans.
